The weather finally gets right for cotton

Skylab poses new problem; lab heats up

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The crippled Skylab space station developed a new problem today when temperatures of 100 degrees were recorded inside the laboratory. The space agency called it a serious problem but still hoped to launch three astronauts to link up with the station on Sunday.

"It's too early to tell if we're in an unmanageable situation," reported flight director Neil Hutchinson. "But the Skylab cluster is hot and it's a problem that we'll have to be able to solve if the mission is to continue."

Hutchinson also reported a problem with a stabilizing gyroscope in the spaceship control system.

These add to the difficulties of space agency experts who are trying to salvage three manned missions from America's first space station.

The laboratory was launched unmanned into a perfect 272- mile high orbit Monday, but suffered a severe blow when two of six solar panels failed to extend properly.

The panels are designed to convert the sun's energy to electrical power. With two panels inoperative, the power supply of the Skylab was cut in half.

Skylab 1 astronauts Charles Conrad Jr., Dr. Joseph P. Kerwin and Paul J. Weitz were to have ridden another rocket into space today to link up with the station for a 28- day space adventure.

But the space agency late Monday postponed the astronauts' liftoff until Sunday to give experts a chance to work out a new flight plan adapted to the reduced power supply.

The failure of the two solar panels to deploy was traced to a mishap 63 seconds after launching of the Saturn 5 rocket when an aluminum micrometeorite shield ripped away from the side of Skylab, damaging or jamming the wing- like devices.

Hutchinson said the absence of the shield, only six- hundredths of an inch thick, apparently is responsible for the heat problems aboard the spaceship.

"It's like Houston on a hot, humid day in there," said the flight director, who was speaking at a news conference at the Johnson Space Center near Houston.

He said temperatures of 100 degrees had been recorded in the center of the 85- ton workshop. Normal temperatures would be in the 60s or 70s, he said.

Air- conditioning units are aboard the craft, but to operate them now would be a serious drain on an already depleted power supply.

Hutchinson said that although "we have a serious anomoly and don't know yet how to cope with it," he was hopeful engineers would come up with a solution in the next two or three days, in time to launch the astronauts on Sunday.

He said the gyroscope problem was not as serious as the electrical or heat problems.

Asked to assess the possibility of a launch Sunday, Hutchinson said: "I've not seen a show stopper yet."

Skylab Project Director William C. Schneider was optimistic at a Monday night news conference that all three planned Skylab missions could be salvaged. But that was before the latest problems cropped up.

"We still have high hopes that they can stay up 28 days, but during the last few days their activity will have to be curtailed because of the power shortage," he said.

"Everybody seems to be holding a post- mortem on Skylab," he said. "But we think we can achieve a lot of our objectives."

And he said there is still a possibility that the Skylab 2 and 3 flights, each scheduled for 56 days later in the year, might be fulfilled. He said that assessment probably can't be made until after the Skylab 1 voyage.

The laboratory, as large as a three- bedroom house, was lofted into a perfect 272- mile- high orbit Monday by a Saturn 5 rocket. Everything was going so well during the

Planting season begins -- late

After a few dsys without rain and quite a bit of sunshine, water- soaked fields around the Bootheel are finally drying out enough to support farm equipment, and planting of crops has finally resumed in Southeast Missouri.

The crop being heavily planted this week is cotton, although it is late in the year to plant cotton. The cutoff date for the government cotton program is May 18. After that date, if the farmer cannot plant cotton, due to adverse weather conditions or other reasons, he may request to plant soybeans and still receive his cotton program benefits.

However, farmers who want to do so must file a written request at the county office after May 18. He must attempt to plant through May 18, according to Kenneth Vowels, county executive director of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office in Benton.

Cotton planting has been picking up the last few days, with farmers doing minimum field preparation work due to the lateness in the season. Joe Scott, state extension agronomist at the Delta Center in Portageville, said that if good weather continues this week, farmers will have most of the cotton planted, that is going to be planted. He added that few farmers in the Sikeston area will plant after the Friday cutoff deadline.

"Farmers have put in more cotton in the last few days than they have this spring," Scott said.

Scott estimates that the cotton crop in the Bootheel will be about 40 per cent of last year's crop. Vowels estimates the final cotton crop in Scott County will be 25 to 50 per cent of what farmers planted last year, depending on the weather.

The state Crop and Livestock Reporting Service says that statewide four per cent of the cotton crop has been planted compared with 79 per cent a year ago.

Many farmers are working into the night to get cotton planted.

Soybean planting is just getting started, Scott said. Land currently under water will probably be planted in soybeans if the land dries out enough. Soybeans should be planted the latter part of this month or early June, Scott added. "The big crop this year will be soybeans," he said.

The problem this year with soybeans will be getting good quality planting seeds because of a shortage of the quality seed, Scott says.

The Crop and Livestock Reporting Service reports soybean planting is just beginning statewide, compared to seven per cent completion in 1972.

Most of the corn that will be planted in the area has been planted, Scott said. Vowels reports that in Scott County the corn crop will be about 20 per cent of what was planted last year.

"It is getting awfully late to plant corn," Scott said. Some may still plant some corn for livestock feed, he added. Corn is usually planted in April.

$2,000 check forged

BENTON — Cotton Holyfield of Sikeston Route Two reported to the Scott County sheriff's department Monday that a check for $2,000 drawn on his bank account had been forged.

According to Deputy Sheriff Gerald Inman, a man phoned Barry Ferrell Friday at Bank of Sikeston and told him he was Cotton Holyfield and that he had written a $2,000 check to a man named Merilyn Woodall, who would be coming to the bank to cash it. Ferrell was told if there wasn't enough money in his (Holyfield's) personal account to cover the check, he was to draw money out of his business account.

Inman said the man came into the bank, talked to Ferrell, received the money and left.

Holyfield told the sheriff's department that he had never written a check for this amount and had not called the bank about such a check.

An investigation is being conducted by Inman.

FAA approves airport grant

The Federal Aviation Administration has approved a $139,461 grant for improvements at the Sikeston Airport, it was announced today in Washington D.C.

The improvements are considered the first phase of the project, including reconstruction of the existing runway apron, runway and taxiway resurfacing, and installation of a visual approach slope indicator. The second pahse of the project will include extending the existing runway 500 feet, surfacing the crosswind runway and acquiring airspace easements near the airport.

The grant is about $4,000 less than the $143,500 requested by the city. The FAA eliminated from the request funds to resurface aircraft parking areas inside hangars. City Manager Jim Huff said the reason for FAA's action was apparently because the hangars were considered the private property of Cotton Holifield, airport manager.

All the money needed for the first phase has been obtained, Huff said. The Ozark Regional Planning Commission approved a grant of $70,000 in March. The state is putting in $25,000 and the city is using $117,000 of its own money for the entire project.

The second phase of the project will cost about $200,000. Huff said the city can get 50 to 75 per cent of the money from outside sources, including the FAA.

Huff said bids should be called for in late June or early July. Work could begin in August.

Huff said if approval of funds for the second phase of the project appear close this summer, the city may hold off work on the airport until the funds are approved. Then the whole project could be done at once, Huff said. The reason for splitting the work into two projects was because a time lag involved in preparing an environmental impact statement could run the project out past the cutoff date for the Ozark funds.

Prosecutor warns against illegal sale of firearms

Scott County Prosecuting Attorney Jim Moore says some people have been selling and buying firearms without the authority to do so.

Moore said it is unlawful for any person other than a manufacturer, wholesaler or retail dealer to directly or indirectly buy, sell, borrow, loan, give away, trade, barter, deliver or receive any pistol, revolver or other firearm of a size which may be concealed upon the person, unless the buyer, borrower or person receiving the weapon obtains a permit authorizing the person to acquire the weapon.

Moore said anyone convicted of selling a firearm without a permit can be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary for a period up to five years, or by imprisonment in the county jail for not less than six months, or by a fine, not less than $50 or more than $500, or by both fine and imprisonment in the county jail.

"Many people are not familiar with this law and are committing the crime innocently," Moore said.

Moore said a person who wants to obtain such a permit may go to the sheriff and request one. If the sheriff feels the person applying for the permit is of lawful age and good moral character and that the granting of a permit will not endanger public safety, he may issue a permit.

The permit will state the date of issuance and that the permit is invalid 30 days after the date, the name and address of the person to whom granted and the name of the person from whom the weapon is acquired. The nature of the transaction and a full description of the weapon must be countersigned by the person to whom it is granted in the presence of the sheriff.

A 50- cent fee is charged for issuing of this permit, Moore said.

Plan group will elect

The Planning and Zoning Commission will meet at 7:30 p.m. today in the City Administrative Building.

On the meeting agenda are election officers and consideration of the Pegues trailer court proposal.

Disaster aid center to close

NEW MADRID — Wednesday is the final day for persons with flood losses to apply for assistance at the federal disaster service center, which has been open since May 7, in the community building on Mill Street.

Following closing of the New Madrid center and the Charleston center, plans call for mobile teams to continue service in the areas.

Teams representing all agencies but employment will be in Arnold on Monday, Ste. Genevieve on Tuesday, Cape Girardeau on Wednesday, Charleston on Thursday and Caruthersville on Friday.

Flood cleanup--part 1

Test water supply, disposal system

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The University of Missouri Extension Service has prepared a packet of information to help flood victims who must clean up. This the the first in a series of articles reviewing this information for readers of The Daily Standard. More information is available at the county extension office. The information for this article was taken from a United States Department of Agriculture publication.)

Now that flood waters are beginning to recede and the sun is showing its face a little more often, many Bootheel residents face the long and tedious job of cleaning up.

The first thing that should be done is to see that everybody is safe and out of danger of new flood crests, fire and falling buildings.

Persons involved should give full cooperation to local authorities, rescue squads and local Red Cross chapter.

Shelter, food, clothing, transportation, medical supplies and hospitalization, if available, should then be arranged for the sick and injured.

During and after a flood, health regulations for personal and community protection against epidemics must be carefully obeyed, and any violations reported.

While cleaning up after the flood, test plumbing fixtures by flushing with buckets of waters. Have the sanitary disposal systems inspected by health authorities to assure proper condition.

The water supply must be tested for purity. Emergency supplies of drinking water should be boiled or chlorinated. No food should be used that has been contaminated by flood waters.

If any fresh foods have come into contact with floodwaters, destroy them and discard or use other foods, according to recommendations.

All private water supplies must be pumped until the water is clear. Construction defects must be corrected and walls, casings and pumping devices cleaned and disinfected.

As soon as the floodwaters recede, a vigorous clean-up of the premises can be started. This should include removing doors, cleaning and drying the house before trying to live in it.

When entering buildings, use flashlights but no matches because of the possibility of escaping gas. Occupants should not turn on electric lights, furnace or fixtures until tested by an electrician. People will also have to watch for nails, splinters, holes in floors or walls and falling of wet plaster.

Basements must be drained or pumped free of water. The stoves, or heating plant, should be put into operating condition as soon as possible because heat hastens drying. Before using heaters, flues and machines, remove sediment from them.

All furniture and rugs should be taken outside and spread to air and dry.

As soon as possible, start cleaning all bedding and clothing, using approved methods for safety and to minimize damage.

Next in the series of articles on cleaning up after a flood will concern repairing the house and farm buildings after a flood with materal prepared by Ralph L. Ricketts, extension engineer.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

There is a difference in an open mind and being empty headed.

We attended the 23rd annual banquet of the Chamber of Commerce at Ramada Inn, Thursday, April 26. The main speaker was L. Goebel Patten, West Frankfort, Ill. The first part of his speech was very entertaining, the second part, when he got ready to tell us what we needed, what we ought to do and the rest of it, I left to the rest of the folks. I was glad to see and hear Dr. Popp get his award, he is a conscientious man who has really made the hospital with its intensive care unit. We hope every body is as happy over Don Agnew's election as president as we are, we think he will make a good one, but of course, he will need some help from everybody and I think everybody is ready to give it to him. They want to keep the Sikeston Chamber of Commerce up on top of the list in the states.

WHO'S ON FIRST?

Well, let's see. First it was Willy Brandt to Washington, calling on President Nixon this month but barely making the front page because of Watergate. Now the West German chancellor is back home getting ready to receive Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev for four days, beginning Friday, May 18. After visiting Bonn, Brezhnev turns around and repacks his bags for a trip to Washington next month -- maybe. Finally, this fall, it will be Nixon's turn to get away for a tour of European capitals.

Does all of this coming and going mean that great things are in the making? Or is it just that spring weather causes everybody to grab any excuse to get away for awhile? It's hard even for the pundits to find any problems between the West Germans and Russians so pressing that they require summitry.

Brandt's Ostplitik, or eastern strategy, has long been welcomed in Moscow and ratified in Bonn. Reconciliation between West Germany and its Communist neighbors has been under way since Brandt took office in 1969. Given these circumstances, it might be assumed that Brezhnev is only practicing the art of spreading good will in a capitalist land -- perhaps as a tune-up for his descent on Washington.

"Would you hire yourself?" asks the National Association of Manufacturers. The Association then continues, "This was the provocative headline on an editorial we ran across recently in a company house organ. It's a good question. The editorial seems worthy of a wider audience, and so here are a few quotes from it. 'If you were your boss and needed someone to fill your present position, would you hire yourself? If you had the choice of a dozen people you presently work with, would you be the first choice to fill your position? Or would you have to look around for someone with more initiative, interest in the job, and a better attitude toward the work and fellow employees?' Then the editoral goes on to point out that if we are honest with ourselves, we are each the best judge of our weaknesses and strengths. It's worth thinking about -- would you hire yourself?"

Failure to yield the right of way was a contributing cause of over 4,000 traffic accidents investigated last year by the Missouri State Highway Patrol.

"The failure of a motorist to yield the right of way can often be attributed to that driver's lack of courtesy and common sense," Colonel Sam S. Smith, the Superintendent of the Missouri State Highway Patrol, stated. "Right of way rules are based on consideration for others in the immediate traffic picture along with sound prudent judgment in regard to the safe manuevering of a vehicle. A driver who neglects to show courtesy and common sense behind the wheel has a very good chance of being involved in an accident."

The Patrol Superintendent then noted a few of the basic right of way safety rules: Yield the right of way to a vehicle which has already entered the intersection from a different highway, provided, there is no form of traffic control at the intersection; a driver within an intersection who intends to turn left must yield the right of way to vehicles approaching from the opposite direction and within the intersection or so close as to constitute an immediate hazard; yield the right of way to pedestrians crossing at intersections in accordance with regulations and when they are crossing on marked crosswalks between intersections; and when two drivers reach an uncontrolled intersection at approximately the same time, the driver on the left should yield the right of way to the driver on his right.

"Failure to yield the right of way accounts for many traffic accidents in the State," Smith continued. "I urge drivers to know all the right of way rules and to obey them for safety's sake."

YOUR CHOICE IS CONTROL SPENDING OR RAISE TAXES

Closing those famous tax "loopholes" won't do the job if Congress expects to spend $15 billion or more in excess of the presently proposed budget. Instead, it will be necessary to lay more taxes on the "little fellow" because there are more of us. It will mean lopping off the average taxpayers' deductions – as, for example, the tax breaks presently given for such things as dependent children and charitable contributions. This would be about as popular with the average taxpayer as a polecat at a picnic.

With certain constituents back home screaming for increased funds to support cities, schools, welfare and you-name it and some organized groups pushing for such things as national health insurance, with a $70 or $80 billion price tag, it is little wonder that Congress has trouble not spending more money. Politically, there are rough days ahead for our elected representatives. As one Washington spokesman put it, "Congress is going to have to exercise its ultimate responsibility and realize they can't have it both ways" -- spending more without more taxes.

Since we've been advised that Congress is hearing from all the big spending groups, but is not hearing from people who want to hold spending in check, we urge our readers to write our congressmen in the Senate and House to support the five budgetary reform proposals contained in the Brock bill (S.40), and the Robinson bill (H.R. 2406).

Don't toss away this rare chance to control federal spending -- a chance to curb deficit spending ... to lessen inflationary pressures ...to set up machinery that will provide better Congressional control over the budget.

DIFFERING LOAN GUIDES CRITICIZED BY EAGLETON

During a trip to flood disaster areas of Missouri last week Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton (D-Mo.) noted the Small Business Administration and the Farmers Home Administration have different guidelines in making loans.

The S.B.A. is making loans to homeowners and small businessmen at the one per cent interest rate with a $5,000 forgiveness feature in connection with storms or floods before April 10 — the date the new and more stringent disaster relief amendments went into effect.

The Farmers Home Administration, however, takes the position that only 5 per cent loans are proper, abolishing its 1 per cent loan program for any disasters that occurred this year.

Eagleton explained the inequities involved:

"A small farmer who was wiped out by the flood is eligible only for a 5 per cent F.H.A. loan with no forgiveness feature," the senator said. "But the man who sells him feed and equipment whose business is right next door can get a 1 per cent S.B.A. loan with the first $5,000 forgiven. Even more inequitable, the farmer who raises cattle can receive only a 5 per cent F.H.A. loan to help repair his losses while the feed lot operator to whom he sells the cattle for the far more generous S.B.A. program."

Eagleton pointed out the Office of Emergency Preparedness told him in early April that because the Missouri floods predated enactment of the new law, disaster victims in the state would be eligible for 1 per cent loans from both S.B.A. and F.H.A.

"No technical, legal argument can justify patent discrimination among disaster victims," he said. "Or rationalize the penalty levied on farmers merely because their small business is of a slightly different character than the business of farm processors and middlemen. Measured by need, they are all of one class- disaster victims — and they deserve equal treatment."

The senator sent a telegram to the White House requesting that the matter be cleared up. He also intends to introduce an amendment later this week when the S.B.A. bill is on the Senate floor to insure equal treatment for all who seek disaster loans, regardless of the agency involved.

THE NAME WITHDRAWN

Governor Christopher S. Bond, inexperienced as he is, is not so inexperienced that he does not recognize a problem that he himself created. We refer to his recent attempt to name a man to be director of the State Personnel Division.

Governor Bond, who it seemed to us, attempted in his campaign for the office, to put himself above political activity of any kind, ran against the "Establishment" and said he was going to give Missouri a better deal than the state had had.

But Governor Bond is human and being a Republican, it was only natural that he should lean toward Republicans. To us that is what politics is all about. But as time went on the young millionaire became more and more imbued with the spirit of GOP or personal candidates.

He wanted a man named Edward E. Haynes to be director of the State Personnel Division. But Mr. Haynes was way down on the list of applicants. In fact, he was fifth on the list and the name must be selected from a list no lower than third spot.

Governor Bond, still anxious to name "his" man for the post, wrote two of the members on the panel of names and asked them to step aside so he could name Mr. Haynes. Then the fur started to fly.

Both Democratic and Republican leaders let it be known right off that they were unhappy with what Governor Bond had done. They had threatened to turn down the Governor's choice. Some of the real vocal opposition to Governor Bond came from his own party.

But seeing the handwriting on the wall, Governor Bond did what apparently was the wise thing to do — he withdrew the name of Mr. Haynes and now he will be replaced by someone else. That is the way politics turns.

The withdrawal of Mr. Haynes' name is the second one the Governor has had to withdraw. Members of the Senate rejected a Bond-appointed member of the Board of Curators at the University of Missouri. So it can be seen that Governor Bond is getting a good baptism into the field of politics that he seems to know so little about.

NOT MUCH ACTION

Some small boys were playing football at school recess. When the teachers arrived to watch them, they saw two boys standing about six yards apart looking rather disconsolate and bored.

"Why aren't you boys playing?" asked one teacher.

"We can't," sniffed one of them. "We're the goalposts."

* * *

Mother: Why did you kick your brother in the stomach?

Daughter: He turned around.

The little boy was playing in the yard when a neighbor's friendly collie dog came over and licked him on the face. The frightened youngster's screams brought the dog's owner out on the run.

"Did he bite you?" inquired the owner.

"No, but he tasted me," came the tearful reply.

HALT INFLATION, TOO

Rising prices are only the symptoms of inflation. The cause of inflation is the increase, by government, of money and credit, much of it through deficit spending. Deficit spending is caused by spending more money than taxes bring in.

The people still ultimately control this government. It is difficult for the people to exercise control since government has grown so large and unwieldly at the federal level, but if the people will organize, they can regain control of their government.

The people are speaking loudly and clearly in election after election that they don't wany any higher taxes. Votes at every level are proving this and elected officials are at last getting the message. Inflation of the supply of money and credit, which means ever- rising prices, must be halted, too, before the people and the Republic will be safe.

Runaway inflation ruined the Weimer Republic of Germany after World War I and paved the way for the rise of Hitler and his national socialism. Communists have long preached to each other that they could destroy the United States and capitalism through inflation. Good working people should get organized and get busy to halt the rise in taxes and halt inflation, too. Inflation is the most vicious of hidden taxes and hurts the old, the poor and the helpless much more than it hurts anyone else, although everybody suffers in the long run. Inflation can be halted. It will be halted when the people demand an end to higher taxes and deficit spending. It is too late not to get organized and get started. HLH

Spirits of '76?

Democratic- Labor Coalition Kicks It Off With Scoop Jackson- Hubert Humphrey Team

WASHINGTON — Meanwhile, back on the ranch. . .

Some of the best Democratic party brains and strategists, though grateful for the political manna deluging them daily, hear from their outposts that "the people" are more interested in mugging than bugging. So the party's new leaders, working closely, though quietly, with labor's high command, are revising their tactics, revising the organization's position papers, and preparing to go to the country on once untouchable issues of violent crime in the streets as well as the high cost of bread.

The "center" has it. And this actually is the Coalition for a Democratic Majority now swinging into action. And that always means a fund- raiser.

The first such bread-breaking-- and making--- will be a gentle affair of unity and fraternity at the home of Mrs. Dean Acheson, widow of Harry Truman's Secretary of State, on Monday, May 21. It will honor Sens. Henry "Scoop" Jackson and Hubert H. Humphrey--- which sounds mightly like a ticket. Few realists now talk of 1976. But the Watergate sluice gates are irrigating many a political mind once thought to be utterly dry of appeal to the nation.

The Coalition is the united front vehicle for the Democrats and labor and youth and blacks--- all the way from the AFL— CIO leaders to Brooklyn's black Congresswoman Shirley Chisholm and the new class of centrist intellectuals such as Harvard's James Q. Wilson, who is advising the group on "violent crime."

On the Coalition's 40-member board are such national labor chiefs as Bud Raftery of the painters, Al Shanker of the teachers, and Walter Burke of "steel." It is understandable that the Coalition isn't eager to show a high labor profile. But that's where the action is.

It is not facetious to report that the Coalition, labor and the Democratic National Committee are one big happy family. During the all- day May 10 session of the party's 61-member Advisory Council, there was fraternity even between McGovern and some of those close to labor--- such as the unions' very own presidential candidate Scoop Jackson.

Fact is, it now appears that the AFL— CIO Committee on Political Education (COPE) will help finance and actively support McGovern's bid for reelection.

There's general agreement that Jackson, who has preponderant labor support, for the moment is "the candidate." Labor's general headquarters watch him, nurse him politically, look out for his image, and are gratified by his domestic and foreign policies which parallel those of the official AFL— CIO Executive Council statements.

Thus there has been considerable discussion of a speech made by Chicago's Mayor Richard Daley last March---- which got little national coverage-- during which he virtually nominated Jackson.

At the Cook County (Ill.) Democratic annual dinner, Mayor Daley said either, "God willing, he (Jackson) will be our next President," or "With the help of God, he will lead this nation." Both versions have come through. Then the mayor--- one of the last symbols of the Big City Machine--- said, in effect, the country couldn't have a more worthy one, and the Democratic party couldn't serve the nation better than designating Jackson its standard bearer.

This is quite an endorsement, early though it comes. It is being interpreted as the abandonment of Ted Kennedy, who can have second place on the ticket whenever he wishes. But he is known to have told friends in more earthy language, "I'm not going to get my backside shot off for second place. If I run, it's the head of the ticket."

This time much will be decided by the labor coalition. Whatever else Watergate has done, it has united labor. So enthusiastic was the independent United Auto Workers over the AFL— CIO criticism of Watergate this past week, that UAW president Leonard Woodcock and his high command endorsed it and had his public relations people call the AFL— CIO to report their action.

So, with a margin for inherent political fratricide which breaks out regularly in any party, labor and the new Democratic leadership are united--- especially for the '74 congressional election.

But the White House hasn't conceded the labor vote yet. Practically at the side of Frank Fitzsimmons at a huge banquet honoring him in the Washington Hilton here last Thursday night were such intimates of President Nixon as ex- Atty. Gen. Richard Kleindienst, Treasury Secretary George Shultz and even Herb Stein, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers.

And to the grandest of White House diplomatic state dinners have been invited such national labor leaders as the United Papermakers' president Joe Tonelli; the general president of the Laborers International, Peter Fosco; the electrical brotherhood's president Charles Pillard; the iron workers' Jack Lyons; the bricklayers: Tom Murphy; the plasterers: Joe Power; and Arcy Degni who succeeded Pete Brennan as president of the New York State Building and Construction Trades Council.

Dick Nixon's side hasn't yet lost this tug of war. We'll know who wins sooner than 1976. The AFL— CIO meets in national convention Oct. 18 in Bal Harbour (Fla.) and now is preparing its position papers-- and invitation list.

Will the President be invited to speak as he has traditionally; And will he be gung ho enough to accept? Those conventions are worth watching— like reading the stars.

Last time both Dick Nixon and George McGovern spoke. Who will it be this time?

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:
Nixon Not A Waterbugger

WASHINGTON-- The question hangs heavily over the Watergate horror. How deeply is President Nixon implicated in the crimes of his subordinates?

The answer is known, of course, only to a few White House insiders who are disposed to protect the President. Nevertheless, we have sought them out and have asked hard questions.

Those privy to the oval office recall that the President was totally absorved with foreign affairs during the Watergate gestation. He has a strong sense of presidential priorities, they say. He doesn't like to be distracted by minor matters when he is concentrating on a major problem.

While G. Gordon Liddy was plotting the Watergate break-in and bugging in Attorney General John Mitchell's offices in early February 1972, the President was preparing for his Peking trip. He returned home on February 28.

HANOI OFFENSIVE

Two days later, the North Vietnamese struck with their surprise spring offensive. The President was wholly occupied with the military crisis in Vietnam throughout April while the Waterbuggers were recruited and equipped.

On May 8, he mined Haiphong harbor, an act which he feared might cause the cancellation of his Moscow visit. This crowded out all other problems, aides recall, as he awaited the Kremlin's reaction and prepared for the summit meeting. He arrived in Moscow on May 22 as the Waterbuggers were reconnoitering the Democratic layout in preparation for the first break- in.

Throughout this period, say aides, subordinates didn't bother him about politics. He usually holed up with his Vietnam- China- Russia paperwork in one of his hideouts. An occasional political poll, memo or clipping would reach his desk, they remember. Usually, it would come back with a scribbled "H," referring it to staff chief H.R. Haldeman. Some were marked both "H" and "C," which meant it should also be called to the attention of troubleshooter Charles Colson.

'IDIOTS!'

Everyone who had access to the President remembers he was angry and surprised by news of the Watergate arrest on June 17. He exploded with expletives, they recall. The kindest word he had for those responsible was "idiots!"

He immediately assigned counsel John Dean, then a presidential favorite, to find out whether anyone in the White House was involved. Aides who heard the President discuss this assignment swear he wanted Dean to make sure the White House was clean, not to obstruct the investigation.

The President was more suspicious but less concerned about the campaign committee across the street at 1701 Pennsylvania Avenue. "It was assumed around the White House," recalls one insider, "that Watergate was strictly a Keystone Kops, 1701 type operation."

The suspicion centered on Jeb Stuart Magruder, the deputy campaign director. Two months before the election, John Ehrlichman urged that Magruder be fingered as the campaign official who authorized the Waterbugging. The decision not to throw Magruder to the wolves, says one source, had the President's approval.

Congressional sources also say that L. Patrick Gray, as acting FBI director, warned the President as early as July 6 that the men around him were misusing both the FBI and CIA. "You are being mortally wounded by the men around you," Gray is quoted as telling the President.

Misplaced Loyalty

Richard Nixon places a high premium on loyalty, which he believes in giving as well as receiving. The men around him, indeed, were selected more for their loyalty than their ability.

It simply didn't occur to the President, in the opinion of those who know him, that such trusted aides as Haldeman and Ehrlichman would deceive him.

Of course, no one knows what Haldeman or Ehrlichman may have told the President in private. But there was never any hint around the White House, say our sources, that Nixon had any inkling of the payoffs to defendants to keep their mouths shut, the destruction of incriminating evidence and the obstruction of justice.

Certainly, he wanted to control the Watergate investigation and keep it from becoming a major embarrassment. He may even have congratulated Dean for helping to soften the blow, although a search of his meticulous records doesn't show the September 17 visit when Dean reputedly claimed the President told him: "Good job, John. Bob (Haldeman) told me what a great job you've done."

Hid Roles

But our sources are convinced that Dean, Mitchell, Ehrlichman and Haldeman concealed from the President their alleged involvement in the illegal cover- up.

Despite his grim, brooding nature, Nixon also has a gentle, compassionate Quaker side. One aide told us that after his name appeared briefly in the Watergate headlines, the President called him in not to demand an explanation but to console him. For an hour, Nixon told about the rough times he had been through and urged his assistant to relax and not let the notoriety get him down.

It is painful for the President to fire anyone, least of all a close associate. He went through several sleepless nights, say aides, before he could being himself to oust Haldeman and Ehrlichman. After the confrontation, they heard, the emotion welled up in his eyes.

The President's involvement in the spying- sobotage operation, however, was less innocent. We'll report on this in a future column.

An Excess of the Dispensable: Things We Might Be Better off Without

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Things we could all do without:

Tunnels without a light at the end of them.

Female chauvinism.

Arrogance in people under 40.

Self-pity in people over 40.

The smugness that all Martini drinkers have after downing the third one.

The master key to Watergate.

The task of writing our own epitaphs.

The task of picking the first female face that should be carved on Mt. Rushmore.

Having to look for sympathy when you're the last guy in your block to come down with the flu.

Getting elected historian of your local PTA chapter.

Listening to a first-year student of the violin trying to tune his instrument the morning after you stayed three hours too long at a cocktail party.

Being the runt of your class in kindergarten.

Getting kissed by a red-haired girl at a birthday party who did so only because her mother told her that if she didn't nobody would get any ice cream.

Getting favorably mentioned in the last will and testament of a guy who had nothing on earth left to leave anybody but good will.

Enemies who praise you behind your back.

Weeks with seven Mondays in them.

The memory of lost Aprils that can never come again.

Bosses who, when they give you a $5 merit raise, manage to leave you with the guilty feeling that your selfish greed may plunge the firm into bankruptcy.

Anybody who either likes or dislikes you for the wrong reasons.

Doors that are opened by someone other than the one your heart hopes will.

Looking back at an action you'd like to undo but know you never can.

Looking forward to something you think you need more than breath itself — and knowing you will never have it.

A house with a yard too small to pitch horseshoes in.

The sight of a blind beggar with an old dog shuffling down an empty street on a rainy day.

Pretzels without salt.

An after-dinner speaker with nothing to say and too much time to say it in.

Guys who think they should have a higher seat in heaven because they always drink their coffee black.

People who are more eager to provide you with good advice than a good example.

A lovely stretch of shining beach but no one dear and near to walk it with.

From these and other distresses and turbulences of mind and spirit, deliver us, Amen.

Daughter-in-law, 5 years younger, calls her Mother

Dear Ann Landers: Our son is 24 years old. He began seeing a divorced women who is 37, and looks every day of it. I was sure the affair would blow over and said nothing to indicate my disapproval. A few weeks ago they announced their engagement, which was a shock to both my husband and me. This woman is only five years younger than I am, Ann. Need I tell you how I felt when she started to call me "mother" the day after the engagement was announced?

Last night she called me "Mother" four times during dinner. It ruined my appetite and I got the hiccups during the meal which added to my embarrassment. My husband seemed to think it was funny. I could have killed him.

What should I do about it? Obviously she is doing this to make me feel older and to remind me that soon she will be a member of the family--- whether I like it or not. I'd appreciate your advice.--- Excedrin Headache

Dear Ex: Get down to basics. The next time she calls you "Mother," ask her to call you by your first name. The doll is going to be around awhile and there's no sense in going through life with hiccups and indigestion.

Dear Ann Landers: I could never ask my mother this question--- she'd kill me. But I do need an answer. Please help me. When I was 15 I made a very big mistake. I was lucky. I didn't get pregnant. I am 18 now and going with a wonderful guy who respects me very much. We are talking about getting engaged when I graduate from high school in a few months and I need to know something. Can a fellow tell if a girl is a virgin? I don't want to go into my past history. Will he know?— No I.D. Please

Dear N.: In most instances there is no definite, irrefutable, physical evidence of virginity. If he's as wonderful as you say, he won't ask questions.

Dear Ann Landers: I would like to address this letter to "Yes, This Means You." The poor woman sounds so sure of her husband I hate to take the wind out of her sails.

I feel terribly sorry for her, or for ANY wife who is 100 per cent certain her husband will never stray because she's a hot number and their sex life is great. Of course, she may be right, if she's lucky enough to have a mature spouse. But usually the men are not so mature. It's a shock for a middle- aged woman to discover that the old boy is stashing girlie magazines and stag movies and bringing home novelty- store tricks to rev up his sex life. After the shock wears off, she figures that if thousands of people are getting their jollies out of these things that maybe they are normal and she's nuts.

Finally she goes to a psychiatrist (where her husband really ought to be) and learns that she's O.K. but he is stuck back there at the 12- to- 14- year- old level. She then has two choices. She can either dump him, or she can be a loving and patient wife and hope her feelings stay alive while he works through his sexual adolescence. She then admits to herself that nobody changes anybody. Everybody has to change himself. And that is the beginning of wisdom.-- I'm Talking About Us, Dear

Dear Talking: Truer words were never spoken. I hope the thousands of women who have this problem will clip today's column and read it when the old boy regresses. It might give them hope.

What kind of wedding goes with today's new life styles? Does anything go? Ann Landers' completely new "The Bride's Guide" tells what's right for today's weddings. For a copy, send a dollar bill, plus a long, self- addressed, stamped envelope (16c postage) to Ann Landers, Box 3346, Chicago, Ill. 60654.

College News

BERNIE — Miss Jean Hope Gregory is the winner of the $200 Missouri Farmers Association College Scholarship awarded to a member of this year's graduating class of Bernie High School. The announcement was made at an awards ceremony Monday afternoon.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Howard Gregory of Route One. Miss Gregory plans to attend Three Rivers Community College and expects to study secretarial science.

While attending high school Miss Gregory was a member of Beta Club, Future Homemakers of America and Future Business Leaders of America. She attends White Oak Grove General Baptist Church.

The $200 scholarship was donated by the MFA Foundation and the Bernie MFA Exchange. It is one of 136 college scholarships being presented to Missouri high school graduates this year by Missouri Farmers Association and affiliated agencies.

Sikeston DI's host annual convention

The Missouri State Circle of Daughters of Isabella will hold its annual state convention Friday, Saturday and Sunday at Ramada Inn. Sikeston, Charleston and Cape Girardeau circles will host the convention which 250 delegates and visitors are expected to attend.

The convention will open Friday evening with a dinner for the delegates of the 31 circles, followed by a reception and entertainment for the delegates and guests. The theme for the convention will be "Southern Hospitality".

The civic session for the three- day meeting will begin at 9 a.m. Saturday morning presided over by Mrs. Wilma Rogers, co-chairman of the convention. Charleston boy's choir will sing at the 5:30 p.m. mass. Bishop Sullivan, state chaplain, will be the principal speaker at the banquet later that evening in the convention room. Father Fortenberry, head of the Home Study Service for Missouri, will be the speaker at the Sunday morning breakfast. Installation of the newly elected officers will be conducted after the breakfast.

The Daughters of Isabella is an international organization with a membership of over 120,000 Catholic women. Missouri membership is over 4,000 in 31 circles.

Arrangements for the convention are under the direction of Mrs. Gerri Schlosser, 927 N. Ranney, and Mrs. Wilma Rogers, 425 Helen. Miss Margaret Dee is state regent. Regents for the hostess circles are Mrs. Mildred Graviett of Sikeston, Mrs. Charlotte Nenninger of Cape Girardeau and Mrs. Margaret Halter of Charleston.

Children should know nature's sights, sounds

By SHEREN K. HUNT
Area Home Economist

Nature! The world around us— the birds singing in the trees, a new flower blooming, or a bright green bug crawling across the sidewalk.

With the coming of pretty, bright days — days filled with sun and fun — maybe this is the time to spend a little time helping your child learn about nature and the world around him.

Nature and its exploration are very important to our children for it helps them to see, to hear, to be a part of the world in which they belong.

It doesn't take a complex lesson in science for you and your child to look at a new flower. But it does take your interest, your concern and your time away from an already busy schedule.

Learning begins at the start. It begins with what is at hand or what has just happened. Depending on the age and previous experience of your child, the learning can vary from a very elementary thing like smelling to the more complex idea which requires thinking and discerning by your child.

How can you begin your child's awareness of nature? Here are a few experiences which you might try with your child:

Find a quiet sitting place and just listen for 60 seconds — no moving — no talking. (Keep this time short. Most children have short interest spans.) Listen for the sounds — birds, insects, animal sounds, a bubbling brook.

Play 'I Spy' for colors. Some colors are easy to see. Look far away. Are all trees the same color? Are all flowers alike?

Be aware of what is around you. Can you see things alike? How are they different? Are the shrubs like the dogwood?

Find things to touch, for to touch is to learn. Touch brings ideas of what an object is like — it is sharp, smooth, thick, soft, cool, slick or dry? What does mud feel like wet? Dry?

Smell the smells. Oh, what a wonderful world we discover when we use our sense of smell. Each season has its own smell, and things smell different after a rain. Just think about pine, apple, lemon, daisy, corn and mint.

Encourage the curiosity of your child. Help him learn to ask questions. Just watch a frog, or see the ant hill. Be interested in the robin building a nest. See the sky at dawn or sunset. Notice the change in the season.

Nature can be an exciting new world to your child if you can take the time to help him explore what is around him.

Coach and horses appear

Acts announced

Mrs. Cline reviews capitol artworks

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is another in a series of articles giving a wife's point of view of Jefferson City by Mrs. Kay Cline, wife of C. F. Cline, state representative from the 159th District).

This is the second of articles about the State Capitol and its works of art.

Missouri State House is a symbol of strength and majesty. The style of architecture is renaissance, surmounted by a dome of unusual beauty. The facade effect from all sides is beautiful.

If a close inspection is taken, it reveals a delicate and beautiful detailed work. All of the pediments have carved figures, but the pediment over the main entrance has an enthroned figure representing Missouri in the center. Her left arm rests on a shield bearing the coat of arms of the state.

On either side is a group of figures, representing the Spirit of Progress, Agriculture, Learning, Commerce, Art, Law and Order.

The capitol is constructed upon the exterior of Carthage (Missouri) stone, a pure, white, crystalline, limestone marble of hard and lasting texture.

Some of the interesting features are the beautiful fluted columns that surmount its north and south porticos, and its eastern and western fronts. The columns are both free and engaged, giving the appearance of a Grecian temple. The architect has devoted much time to the study of this feature.

Directly behind and above the statue of Jefferson are the massive columns of the south portico supporting the state motto (written in Latin), meaning, The Welfare of the People Shall Be the Supreme Law.

The steps of the main entrance on which the statue of Jefferson stands are 120 feet in the greatest length. The large space under the wide stairway which leads up to the state entrance to the capitol had only an earthen floor in its origin. Water leaking through the joints in the steps threatened the stairway by making the earth damp.

Under the direction of a commission, this space was cleaned out and a granitoid floor was laid. The joints in the steps were caulked. A valuable storage room was secured for the use of the departments housed in the capitol.

The capitol is surrounded by a beautiful concrete terrace 12 feet wide, extending almost entirely around the building. The wide open stretch of concrete ground is enclosed with a handsome row of balusters topped by a rail, and is finely lighted. The walls of the terrace are bush-hammered in imitation of stone.

The building stands upon 285 concrete piers of varying sizes, which extend to solid rock at depths ranging from 20 to 50 feet deep. It is 437 feet long and 200 feet wide in the wings and 300 feet through the center. It is 88 feet from the floor of the basement to the top of the exterior wall, 262 feet from the basement floor and 400 feet from the Missouri River level to the top of the dome.

It covers approximately three acres and has almost 500,000 feet of floor space. The framework is of steel, brick and marble. It has four stories besides the basement. There are entrances to the basement from three sides, to the first floor from four sides, and to the second floor from two sides.

The diameter of the dome at its greatest dimension is 104 feet. There are 32 columns around the drum of the dome, three feet in diameter and 24 feet high. The height of the shell of the dome and lantern is 90 feet and the diameter of the shell is 78 feet. There are 16 highly carved panels around the drum of the dome, 5 feet high and 9 feet wide.

There are 300 feet of sculptural frieze work, eight and nine feet high in the front and rear porticos. There are 200 carved medallions on the rear and front porticos. The ceilings of the portico and the dome are highly decorated in ornamental plaster.

There are 134 columns in the entire building. They are surmounted by Corinthian capitals 7 feet 2 inches wide by 5 feet 3 inches high. There are 32 engaged columns, four feet high, and 20 free- standing columns in the wings. One fourth of all the stone in the structure is in columns.

NEW CHILPREN'S TV PROGRAM IS BICULTURAL

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — English and Spanish children in this country will get to know each other better if a new educational television program achieves its goals, according to the sponsors of the project.

Beginning this fall, a bilingual-bicultural Spanish-English television program for children from preschool through the primary grades will be telecast daily on a national basis. The 130-program series, as yet untitled, will be funded by the United States Office of Education.

The program's target audience includes millions of young American children. The purpose is not simply to teach English to Spanish-oriented children.

"We want English-speaking children to learn or become familiar with the Spanish language, culture, customs and heritage, too. Through this method Spanish-oriented and Anglo children can learn about, appreciate and understand other cultures and each other," said Dr. Rene Gardenas, executive director of Bilingual Children's Television Inc., which is producing.

Hayti Heights eatablishes goals and objectives

HAYTI HEIGHTS — Mayor David Humes and the City Council have developed a fact sheet on the Heights, including goals and objectives of the city.

The introduction states that the city is a low- income black community, population 1,231, with many problems. Eighty per cent of the residents receive some form of welfare; 50 per cent of the houses are grossly substandard with inadequate or no plumbing.

It also says there are no public water and sanitary sewer facilities and inadequate storm sewers cause health hazards. Another problem is a lack of adequate jobs for employable residents.

The goal of Hayti Heights, according to the fact sheet, is for the city to become a self-sustaining community.

Short range objectives of the city include:

A. Land use plan or comprehensive plan -- 1. Purpose: step toward water and sewer and step toward attracting business and industry, 2. Request: help with financing the 25 per cent matching for a Department of Housein and Urban Development planning grant or possibly even total cost.

B. Preliminary engineering report -- 1. Purpose: necessary step towards water and sewers 2. Request: help with total financing.

C. Equipment for fire truck -- 1. Purpose: lower cost of fire protection and increase service, 2. Request: cost of equipping truck uninhabitable.

D. General clean-up - removal of brush and dilapidated houses -- 1. Purpose: clear land for future development, develop community pride, provide jobs and income, especially summer jobs for youth, 2. Request: cost of equipment and wages, amount not yet approximated.

E. Community center sketch plan -- 1. Purpose: increase community participation in planning, complete initial steps toward community center, 2. Request: outside technical assistance if necessary, local resources may be adequate.

F. Inventory of resources -- 1. Purpose: to aid in future planning and "selling" of area to business and industry, 2. Request: outside technical assistance if necessary, local resources may be adequate.

G. Recreation program -- 1. Purpose: to aid development of youth, provide jobs and income, enhance community attitude, 2. Request: some equipment, wages for supervisors.

H. City Administrator -- 1. Purpose: set up appropriate accounting system, make best use of available resources, 2. Request: salary.

Long range objectives (1-5 years).

A. Water and sewer final design and construction -- 1. Purpose: enable further physical development, attract business and industry, 2. Request: help to finance matching share for federal grants and/or loans, political pressure to shorten application time.

B. Final design and construction of community center -- 1. Purpose: foster greater sense of community and spirit of cooperation, provde base for community efforts, 2. Request: technical assistance and financing of site and building costs.

C. Paved streets 1. Purpose: better living conditions, attract business and industry, 2. Request: partial financing if necessary.

D. Community owned basic stores and services including cooperative grocery store, laundramat, filling station, and maybe clothing store -- 1. Purpose: keep income in community, give residents more for their money, 2. Request: help with initial financing.

E. Development of industrial park -- 1. Purpose: Attract industries to provide jobs and tax base, 2. Request: aid in financing.

F. Establish industries -- 1. Purpose: provide jobs to hold younger people and increase community income, 2. Request: "Sell" industries on Hayti Heights.

G. Housing projects -- 1. Purpose: improve living condition for residents, attract larger work force 2. Request: financial backing.

Ongoing community supported projects include the Help Club, Block Club and Hayti Heights Community Development Corporation.

Printing has been illegal

JEFFERSON CITY— Millions of dollars of printing for the legislature apparently has been done illegally, according to an attorney general's opinion issued Monday.

The St. Louis Globe-Democrat disclosed last month that most of the legislative printing has been done without public bids, although state law appeared to require it.

A series of articles reported that the chairman of a House committee had agreed with a small- town printing firm, operated by a friend, to provide a two- year supply of stationary and envelopes for the 163 state representatives.

The firm, Scott- Mo. Publishing Co. in Chaffee, reportedly is too small to handle the large order. It paid two other firms to furnsh the printing. At least three firms would be able to profit from the state that way.

In addition, the House and Senate for years have hired a St. Louis firm, Von Hoffman Press, Inc., to print copies of legislative bills and journals of daily proceedings. Again, no public bids have been taken, at least in recent years.

The Von Hoffman work, done at its Jefferson City plant, amounts to about $250,000 a year, the House stationery was estimated to cost about $30,000 for two years.

The Senate has for two years required bids from firms to supply its stationery, according to Sen. Albert M. Spradling Jr. Cape Girardeau Democrat. He said the Senate had saved 28 per cent from its earlier cost by requiring bids.

Spradling is chairman of the Senate Accounts Committee.

Rep. Fred DeField, Charleston Democrat, is chairman of the House Accounts Committee, which is in charge of House and Senate spending. DeField said he hired the Chaffee firm.

When told of the official opinion by Attorney General John C. Danforth, Senate president pro tem William Cason, Clinton Democrat, said he is "certainly willing" to offer the large printing volume for bids.

After the situation was revealed, House Speaker Richard J. Rabbitt, St. Louis Democrat, said he would begin to require bids if the attorney general said the law requires it.

Monday's legal opinion said all legislative printing must be purchased by the purchasing agent in the State Office of Administration. Law requires all government printing to be handled through that office on the basis of the best competitive bid.

Rep. Ray S. James, Kansas City Republican, had requested the opinion from Danforth. "I'm a little surprised no one caught this before," James said Monday of the apparently illegal practice that had been used for years.

DeField and Spradling had said the printing law did not apply to the House and Senate because another section of law authorizes the legislature to control the spending of its contingent fund.

Also, they and other lawmakers said there was apparently no need to take bids for the costly printing of legislative bills and journals because Von Hoffman is the only firm that can handle the printing work on an overnight basis as the General Assembly requires.

They said that had been determined some years ago, but they did not cite any effort to determine if that situation still is in effect or if a better price for the state might be obtained if public bids were required.

James pointed out that the opinion has the potential of saving taxpayers money. "I presume the House will comply."

The opinion was written by Assistant Attorney General Walter W. Nowotny Jr. It said "the printing of all stationary, bills, journals and other printing of the legislature for any of its creatures such as legislative joint committees, interim committees or commissions must be purchased" under provisions of the state printing law.

Cason said he questions the validity of the opinion because Danforth's office has made mistakes in the past. But he added that he expects to name Sen. Richard Webster, Carthage Republican, to investigate printing requirements.

"If somebody can do it cheaper, that's fine— we want to save all the money we can," Cason said.

Coleman case hearing set

CARUTHERSVILLE— A preliminary hearing of the first-degree robbery and murder charges filed against Howard Coleman, 19, of Tarpon Springs, Fla., a former Blytheville, Ark., resident, has been set for May 21, according to magistrate court records here.

Coleman is accused of participating in the April 5 robbery of the Holland Raceway Service Station, in which 18- year- old Robert Wayne Fisk of Steele was shot to death.

Coleman, represented by attorney John Fowlkes, is being held in the Pemiscot County Jail at Caruthersville in lieu of $50,000 bond.

Separate, but identical charges have been filed against two former Blytheville men, Eddie Lee Orr, 21, and Leon Orr, 19.

The Orr brothers, along with Coleman's older brother, Charles Edward Coleman, 22, were arrested by police last month in connection with the robbery of a St. Genevieve service station, in which a customer was slain.

The Orr brothers and Charles Coleman also have been charged with first- degree murder in connection with the March 31 shooting death of Mrs. Hazel Elmore, the wife of an Osceola, Ark., service station owner.

House passes bill to make Truman's birthday state holiday

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP)— The Missouri House passed and sent to the governor today a bill to make May 8, the late Harry S. Truman's birthday, a state holiday in Missouri.

His birthdate would replace April 13, Jefferson's birthday, on the state holiday list. The bill also changes Veterans Day back to Nov. 11, Armistice day, from the fourth Monday in October.

An amendment in the Senate said the following Monday, if May 8 falls on a Saturday or a Sunday, could not be considered a state holiday. That would prevent a three- day weekend for state workers unless May 8 falls on a Friday.

The bill, sponsored by Rep. Phillip Scaglia, D—Kansas City, passed 131- 15. It was the fourth bill sent to the governor in the 5- month-old session.

The bill would become effective next year.

In Monday night's committee action, a House member said any bill to reinstate the death penalty in Missouri will probably have to be a compromise worked out by a joint Senate- House committee.

Rep. Bob Griffin, D-Cameron, told the Senate Judiciary Committee Monday night that the House Judiciary Committee last week approved a substitute for the version approved earlier by the Senate.

Griffin was appearing before the Senate Judiciary Committee to testify on the version passed by the House several weeks ago. Discussion between Griffin and the senators soon switched to the best way of getting some death penalty bill passed.

Griffin said the method House members were expecting was a conference committee.

One senator suggested the committee hold the House version and wait until the substitute for the Senate version is approved, and then appoint a joint committee to work out the differences.

Griffin said later the House committee substitute was "in effect the House bill," and that a conference committee could work out differences more quickly.

The House version also has an emergency clause to put the bill into effect immediately after it is signed by the governor.

Sen. Maurice Schechter, D-Creve Coeur, said the Senate had already spent seven days of floor action working out their version, and that more debate would be "wasting time."

He also recommended a conference committee.

The House version contains all the categories of murder which would bring a mandatory death penalty included in the Senate bill.

It also proscribes capital punishment for some not included in the Senate bill, such as death for persons convicted of hijacking airplanes.

Both measures give the death penalty to persons convicted of murder during rape, robbery, burglary, arson and kidnaping.

Earlier the House passed and sent to the Senate several bills, including one to give state aid to veterans attending college.

The bill would pay one third the cost of tuition or incidental fees. Yearly cost to the state is estimated at $2.4 million.

The House also defeated two bills called "special interest" bills by their opponents.

One would have required all real estate appraisers to be licensed by the state, which opponents said would be restricting competition among real estate appraisers.

The bill lost on a tie, 76-76 vote, because it failed to get a constitutional majority of 82.

The other bill, defeated 78-72, also because it failed to get 82 votes, would have required retailers to buy their beer only from licensed wholesalers.

Opponents of the bill said it meant higher prices for consumers.

The bill had been defeated earlier on first round approval. However, the vote was reconsidered, and it had been given tentative approval.

The senate debated, but took no action, on a version of a nofault automobile insurance bill, drawn up by the Missouri Bar Association.

Sen. Truman E. Wilson, D-St. Joseph, said he would introduce a substitute bill, but needed time to have copies made.

Walters accuses aides of seeking CIA help in coverup

WASHINGTON (AP) — The No. 2 man in the Central Intelligence Agency reportedly has accused former White House aides H.R. Haldeman, John D. Ehrlichman and John W. Dean III of trying to enlist CIA help in a Watergate coverup.

CIA Deputy Director Vernon A. Walters testified in secret Monday before the Senate Armed Services Committee. Later Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., said Walters had testified that Haldeman, Ehrlichman and Dean were "heavily involved" in efforts to misuse the CIA. Another source said one effort had been a Watergate coverup.

The account dovetails with statements by former acting FBI chief L. Patrick Gray III. He testified before Senate Watergate investigators last week, and The Associated Press has obtained an official written digest of his remarks.

Gray said Walters got the FBI to postpone interviews with two Watergate witnesses last year on grounds the CIA had "some interest" in them.

Walters later conceded under pressure that the CIA actually had no interest whatsoever in the two, Gray said, but not before Ehrlichman personally ordered Gray to cancel a meeting set up to straighten out the matter between the CIA and FBI.

Gray said he and Walters agreed this "confusion" was "not normal," and the two agreed that Gray should tell President Nixon.

Gray talked to Nixon by telephone that same day, July 6, blamed the matter on "either carelessness or indifference" by White House aides, and warned Nixon that "this could be injurious to the agencies and could wound the President."

The witnesses are two men whose names appeared on checks that passed through the Nixon campaign headquarters and landed in the Miami bank account of Bernard L. Barker, one of the convicted Watergate conspirators.

The witnesses are Mexican lawyer Manuel Ogarrio Daguerre and Minneapolis attorney Kenneth H. Dahlberg. The checks eventually furnished a link between the wiretappers and the Nixon re-election committee.

The fresh reports of White House misuse of the CIA came after a day of rapid-fire developments Monday.

Missing FBI records of wiretaps on 13 government officials and four newsmen were found in Ehrlichman's White House safe, acting FBI Director William Ruckelshaus announced. Ehrlichman said he hadn't known in detail what the documents contained.

Ruckelshaus said the taps had been ordered in 1969 after presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger told the late FBI director J. Edgar Hoover he was "extremely concerned" about news leaks affecting foreign policy.

One of the taps picked up conversations of Daniel Ellsberg and figured in last week's dismissal of charges against him in the Pentagon papers trial.

Dean, meanwhile, turned over a batch of classified documents to federal court officials after Chief U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica agreed to accept custody.

Dean had stashed the documents in a Virginia safe-deposit box, saying he was afraid someone might destroy them. He said they relate to the Watergate case, but otherwise gave no indication of what the documents say.

Haldeman was called by the Watergate grand jury for a five-hour repeat appearance and Ehrlichman testified briefly. On Capitol Hill, convicted Watergate conspirator E. Howard Hunt was interviewed for three hours by Senate investigators.

The Senate Watergate committee continued gearing up for the start of public hearings, which begin Thursday.

The Senate Judiciary Committee went into its third day of hearings on the nomination of Defense Secretary Elliot L. Richardson to be attorney general. Richardson said he has narrowed his choice for a special Watergate prosecutor to four men: U.S. District Court Judge Harold R. Tyler of New York, former New York state Judge David Peck, Colorado State Supreme Court Judge William Erickson and former Deputy U.S. Atty. Gen. Warren Christopher of Los Angeles.

RESOLUTION

A resolution declaring the necessity for the construction of One and one- half inch Hotmix Asphaltic Pavement on Six Inch Soil Cement Base with Concrete Curb and Gutter on and along Garwood Street from Edward to Dead end in the city of Sikeston, Missouri; stating the nature of the improvement; the esimated cost and providing that payment for all of the improvement shall be made by special tax bills levied and assessed against the abutting property. Be it resolved by the council of the city of Sikeston, state of Missouri, as follows: section 1: that the council of the city of Sikeston, Missouri, deems and declares the construction of said street necessary to the welfare and improvement of the city of Sikeston. section 2: that the nature and scope of the improvement shall consist of furnishing all cost, including labor, materials and transportation necessary for the complete construction of the improvement. section 3: that the estimated cost of the improvement is $5.85 per lineal foot of ab utting property, to be charged against the lots and tracts of land abutting the improvement. section 4: that payment for all of the improvement shall be made by special tax bills evidencing special assessmentsagainst the abutting property in the manner specified by the statutes of the state of Missouri and the ordinances of the city of Sikeston, Missouri, because in the opinion of the city council the general revenue fund of the city of Sikeston is not in a condition to warrant an expenditure therefrom to pay for the improvement. section 5: that any work performed on construction of the improvement shall be in compliance with the provisions of the prevailing wage laws of the state of Missouri, such prevailing wage rates having been established by the industrial commission of Missouri. section 6: that the city clerk is hereby authorized and directed to furnish a copy of this resolution to a daily newspaper of general circulation in the city of Sikeston, so that it shall be published for seven consecutive insertions. Read the first, second and third times and passed and approved this 7th day of may, 1973. Approved: Frank Ferrell, Mayor; Attest: John W. vaughn, City Clerk.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION OF NOTICE

The State of Missouri to:
JOSEPH H. ALLEN, JR., Trustee; JOSEPH H. ALLEN JR.; BETTYE JOHNSON ALLEN; LUCY B. MEADE; ALBERT MEAD; MARY ROSE; and HUGH ROSE.

You are hereby notified that an action has been commenced in the Circuit Court of Scott County, State of Missouri, the object and general nature of which is condemnation of an easement for an electric transmission line which affects the following described property in Scott County, Missouri:

TRACT 2

JOSEPH H. ALLEN, Jr., Trustee; JOSEPH H. ALLEN, Jr. and BETTYE JOHNSON ALLEN, Davidson County, Tennessee

The East Half of the Southeast Quarter of Section 3, Township 26 North, Range 14 East.

TRACT 12

LUCY B. MEADE and ALBERT MEADE, Boyle County, Kentucky

Section 1, Township 26 North, Range 13 East.

TRACT 13

MARY ROSE and HUGH ROSE, Plymouth County, Massachussets

All that part of Fractional Section One (1), in Township 26 N., Range 13 East, lying west of center of highway known as "Kingshighway" and containing 24.20 acres, more or less.

Also, that part of U. S. Survey No. 1077 in Township 26 North, Range 13 East, lying north of center of public road, running east and west on the continuation of the North line of Sections 11 and 12 of said Township and Range, containing 262.74 acres, more or less.

The names of all parties to said suit are stated above in the caption hereof and the name and address of the attorney for the Plaintiff is W. Robert Cope, of the law firm of Oliver, Oliver, & Jones, 400 Broadway, Cape Girardeau, Missouri, 63701.

You are hereby summoned to appear before the above named Court in the City of Benton, Missouri, on the 25th day of May, 1973, at 9:00 o'clock A.M. or as soon thereafter as the case may be heard, at which time the condemnation petition will be heard, and on or before such time, to file your pleadings if any, to the petition filed in this case, in the office of the Circuit Clerk of Scott County, Missouri, and also by said time to serve a copy of your pleadings, if any, upon plaintiff's attorney, whose name and address is given above; or if you do not desire to do so, or if you fail to appear or plead to the petition, judgment by default will be taken against you for the appointment of three condemnation commissioners to assess the damages which you may sustain in consequence of plaintiff's acquisition of the easement over the above described property for the erection, operation, and maintenance of an electric transmission line, and for the relief demanded in the petition.

It is ordered that a copy hereof be published according to law in "The Daily Sikeston Standard", a newspaper of general circulation, published in the County of Scott, State of Missouri.

A true copy from the record.

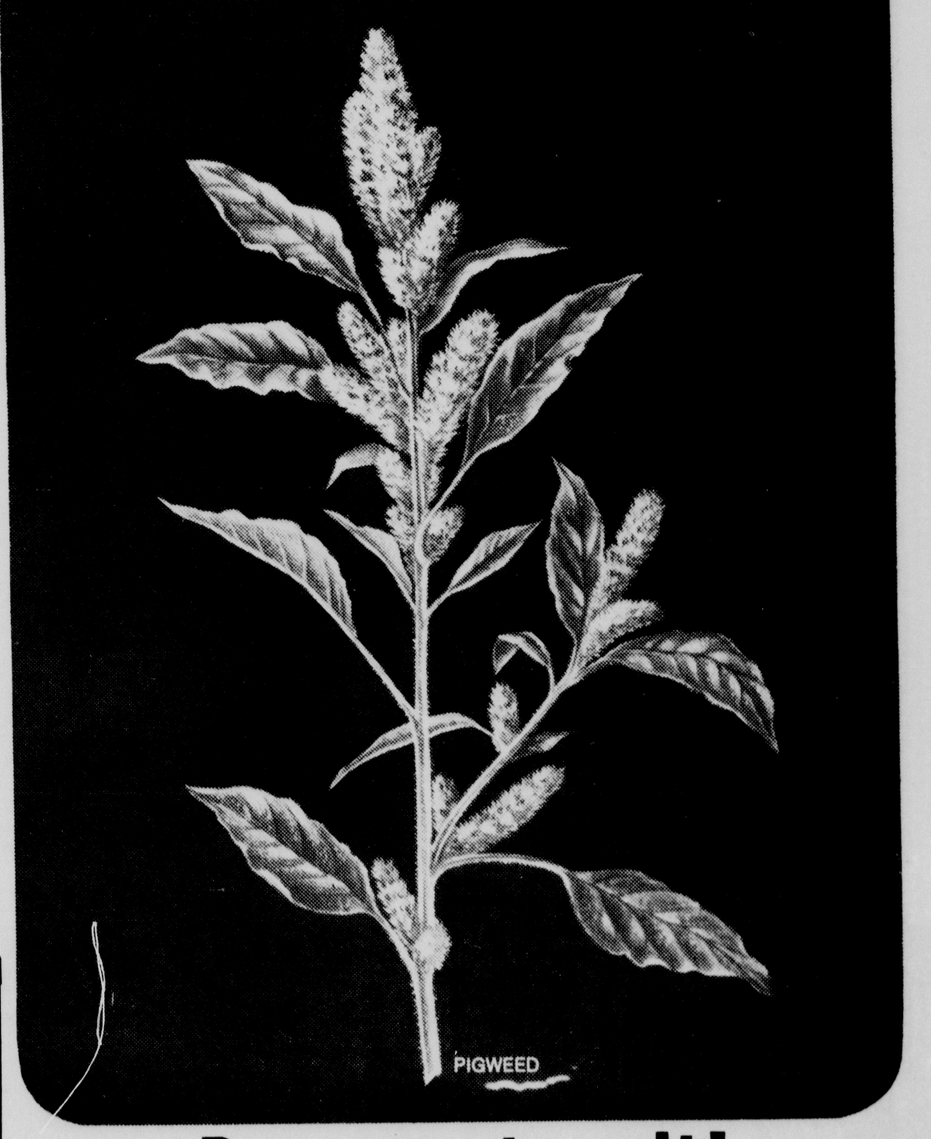
The Troublemaker.



Dyanap® stops it!

If you're a soybean or peanut grower, you recognize this Troublemaker. It robs your crop of sun and moisture. Chokes up harvesting equipment. Steals your profits! You need Double-Action Dyanap.

Dyanap combines a contact weed killer and a pre-emergence herbicide. Kills seedling weeds on contact, when you apply it. Then stays around to knock out late germinating weeds for up to 6 weeks.

Dyanap does its job, then disappears . . . with no trace of harmful residue. Come in and get your supply of Dyanap by Uniroyal . . . the herbicide that silences the Troublemakers!

W.A. Dolan to be chief of staff

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri Highway Patrol today announced a series of promotions, including a new assistant superintendent and new chief of staff.

Col. Sam Smith, patrol superintendent, said Maj. Walter Snyder will be promoted to lieutenant colonel and will become assistant superintendent, replacing Lt. Col. V. E. Maxey, who is retiring.

Snyder, a native of Excelsior Springs, has been with the patrol since 1939 and has been chief of staff since January 1971.

Snyder's replacement as chief of staff will be W. A. Dolan, who will be promoted from captain to major.

He will be transferred from the Kirkwood troop-to general headquarters at Jefferson City.

A native of Wardell, Mo., Dolan has been with the patrol since 1946.

The new commander at the Kirkwood troop will be A. F. Closson, who will be promoted from lieutenenat to captain.

Closson, in the patrol since 1946, is from Keytesville.

Benefits available to flood homeless

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri Division of Employment Security received $249,000 Monday from the U.S. Office of Emergency Preparedness to provide unemployment benefits for persons left homeless by flooding.

Joseph E. Dietrich, assistant director of unemployment security, said 12,000 persons living up and down the Mississippi have applied for unemployment benefits as a result of flooding.

The division expects to receive another $2 million in the next week or so, but that still may not take care of all 12,000 claims, he said.

The division must determine exactly how much income was lost to individuals because of flooding.

$98,000 grant approved for SeMo U criminal law program

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Frank Mack of Ironton, chairman of Region 8, and William Inman of Caruthersville, chairman of Region 6, have announced approval of a grant to Southeast Missouri State University from the Law Enforcement Councils of Regions 6 and 8, totaling $98,000 for support of an Institute of Criminal Justice.

The Institute, under the direction of Dr. A. R. Meyer, dean of instruction at the University, continues the Regional Crime Laboratory project and the Law Enforcement Education Program, both funded by the law councils. However, this new grant places their administration for the first time under one office. This combined project will enable the crime laboratory and the law enforcement education to integrate where possible, which will result in upgrading law enforcement in Southeast Missouri.

The crime laboratory project, under the direction of Dr. R. C. Briner, received $9,000 of local support money from 14 counties and 15 cities from Southeast Missouri to provide the necessary match of federal money required for proposals of this type. The law councils and the university were extremely pleased with this board support for the crime laboratory and interpret it as a vote of confidence for the regional laboratory concept, according to Vernon Fee of Cape Girardeau and Tom Gilmore of Sikeston, co-chairmen of the Crime Lab Committee.

The education portion of the project will be directed by Dr. George Ketcham, chairman of the division of history and social science. In addition to the programs leading to the Associate of Arts and Bachelor of Science Degrees in law enforcement, a program in forensic science is currently being considered by the university.

The Executive Director of the two law councils, Bob Henzi of Malden in the Region 6 Council, Ron Bockenkamp of Bonne Terre in the Region 8 Council, John Cavanagh, fiscal officer of the Region 8 office, and Dr. D. H. Fromesdorf, chairman of the university's science division, assisted with the proposal preparation.

What's the Law?

The case of the frightened property owner

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Myron lived in a world of fear. In fact, the full extent of his courage was to admit that he had none. Everything frightened him. Noises in the middle of the night, his own shadow creeping up on him and, most of all, black cats. Consequently, picture his chagrin when he came home from work one afternoon to find that a mausoleum was being built only an owl's hoot away on the property directly adjacent to his own.

With his knees still knocking, Myron raced to court the next morning and, insisting that the mausoleum was a nuisance, demanded an order directing its immediate removal.

"While I don't discriminate against who lives next to me," he told the judge, "when it comes to a ghost, it's another matter. I just don't want one for a neighbor. When there's a rapping on my door, I'd like to be able to see who it is, and if I can't, it's going to scare the life out of me. Certainly, no one has to put up with that kind of thing."

"Mausoleums have to be built somewhere," was the answer. "Since there's no law that says that one can't be built on the property next to Myron's property, his lack of courage is no grounds to prohibit its erection. If Myron hears any rapping on his door, he's just going to have to hope for the best."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you alay Myron's fears and order the removal of the mausoleum?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that to provide for the repose of the dead is as lawful as to provide for the comfort of the living. While the presence of a mausoleum may cause some unpleasant thoughts, concluded the judge, a mausoleum, like a cemetery, is not a "nuisance" unless it is managed in such a manner as to endanger the comfort and health of those living nearby.

Prayer for today

from the Upper Room

A man shall be as an hiding place from the wind, and a covert from the tempest;...as the shadow of a great rock in a weary land. [Isaiah 32:2]

PRAYER: O God, our Father, help us as Christians in this wobbly world to stand firmly for all that is right and good. So may a bulwark be erected against evil, and goodness spread and grow among men. Amen.

Deaths

LENNIE GREABLE

CHAFFEE — Mrs. Lennie Greable, 72, of Chaffee died Saturday at 12:05 p.m. in Southeast Missouri Hospital in Cape Girardeau.

She was born Nov. 22, 1900 at Advance.

Surviving are three sons, Junior and Norman Ing of Cape Girardeau and Harvey Walker of Splendora, Tex.; one daughter, Mrs. Dorothy Bowman of Advance; one brother, Burt Goodman of Bridgeport, Mich.; one sister, Mrs. Frank York of Cape Girardeau; and 26 grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Services were conducted Monday afternoon at Ford and Sons Funeral Home in Cape Girardeau. The Rev. Dallas Williams, pastor of Faith Baptist Temple in Cape Girardeau, officiated.

Burial was in Memorial Park Cemetery in Chaffee. Pallbearers were Harold and Joe Hines, Floyd York, Frank Dietiker, Paul Walker and Gary Scheerf.

LILLIAN GARNER

ADVANCE — Mrs. Lillian Garner, 58, of Madison, Tenn., a former resident of Advance, died at 3:15 a.m. Thursday in Madison.

She was born in November 1914 near Advance. In April 1931, she married Clarence E. Garner, who survives.

Also surviving are two sons, Donald Gene and Kenneth Garner of Madison; two daughters, Mrs. Virginia Davis of Enterprise, Ala., and Mrs. Clarilyn Turner of Augusta, Ga.; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Collins of Advance; two brothers, Luther Collins of Cape Girardeau and Raymond Collins of Lutesville; two sisters, Mrs. Floyd Thorn of Tucson, Ariz., and Mrs. Jim Thorn of Kankakee, Ill.; and 11 grandchildren.

Services were conducted Saturday at 2 p.m. at Madison Funeral Home.

Burial was in Madison Cemetery.

JAMES R. NANNEY

CHAFFEE — James Roscoe Nanney, 82, died at 9:30 a.m. Monday at the family home of a heart attack.

He was born March 6, 1891, near Scopus, on May 27, 1949, he married Millie Jane Lewis of Chaffee, who survives.

He was a former employe of Little River Drainage District and the city of Chaffee.

Also surviving are one son, Jackson C. Nanney of Whitewater; two daughters, Mrs. John Kinder of Allenville and Mrs. Loretta Keller of Chaffee; one stepdaughter, Mrs. Clola Prideaux of Chaffee; and 11 grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

The body is a Amick-Burnett Funeral Chapel where services are scheduled at 2 p.m. Wednesday. The Rev. Virgil Barnes, pastor of the Church of God of Prophecy, will officiate.

Burial will be in Union Park Cemetery.

CECIL STEELE

DUDLEY — Cecil Steele, 60, died early today in Lucy Lee Hospital in Poplar Bluff.

He was born Sept. 26, 1912 in Fulton, Miss. On Nov. 9, 1933 at Blytheville, Ark., he married Helen Ralph, who preceded him in death on Feb. 28, 1960.

He is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Elmer E. Battles of Dudley; one son, Cecil Steele Jr. of Wheaton, Ill.; six sisters, Vina Davis and Rhonda Orr of Blytheville, Norma Jackson of Memphis, Tenn., Exa Hodge of Dexter, Willa Dean Reich of Nettleton, Miss., and Emma Jean Kelly of Florida; three brothers, Truman Steele of Chicago, J. T. Steele of Clarksdale, Ark., and Grady Steele of Tremont, Ill.; and six grandchildren.

Friends may call at Rainey Funeral Home in Dexter after 2 p.m. Wednesday.

Services are scheduled Thursday at 2 p.m. in the funeral home with the Rev. Melvin Gainer officiating.

Burial will be in Maple Grove Cemetery at Blytheville.

2 accidents result in 1 injury

Two accidents occurred within 30 minutes of each other this morning, one which sent an 18- year- old girl to the hospital for x- rays and the other which involved the police department's safety officer.

Mona Carol Thompson of 513 Prosperity, was taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital for x- rays after the automobile she was driving ran into the rear of a car belonging to Earnest E. Goins, 56, of 1514 Matthews. The x- rays revealed no broken bones.

Police said the Goins vehicle was stopped in traffic to make a turn from the westbound lane of W. Malone Ave. onto Delmar when he was struck in the rear by the Thompson car.

The Thompson woman was arrested for careless and imprudent driving, according to police.

About 7:30 a.m. an automobile driven by police safety officer Richard Couch 25, of 312 Benton, struck the rear of a car driven by Leroy Stephen Bess, 26, of 328 Virginia, while Couch was avoiding a child who was crossing the street.

Police said Couch was intent on avoiding the child as he made a left turn onto Warner Street from Benton and struck the Bess car in the rear end.

No arrests were made.

first orbit that a flight control official called it a "superbird."

But trouble began even before the Skylab reached orbit.

Just 63 seconds after liftoff, a paper- thin aluminum overcoat designed to protect the lab from micrometeorite hits apparently was ripped from the side of the spacecraft, Schneider reported. This failure apparently damaged two wing- like solar panels that were to have extended from the sides of the spaceship to convert the sun's rays to electrical power.

The two 30- foot panels deployed only partially and are useless. Efforts to dislodge them by radio command failed.

The mishap with the shield occurred 40,000 feet up while the 33- story- tall Saturn 5 was subjected to maximum pressure from high altitude wind shears.

Suit motions filed

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The legislature should have tried to override Gov. Christopher S. Bond's appropriations vetoes before filing suit against him, the attorney general's office said Monday in filing motions with the Missouri Supreme Court.

Democratic leaders in the House and Senate and the appropriations chairmen have sued Bond for striking words out of a $6.8 million appropriations measure. They contend that such action nullifies the intent of the legislature.

Richard Houdek of the attorney general's office, in his answer to motions filed by the legislators, said the state Supreme Court lacks jurisdiction to rule on another branch of government; that such a question should be settled by a higher court.

His brief pointed out that the legislators have not exhausted all remedies in that they did not attempt to override the word vetoes.

Houdek contended the state Constitution does not limit Bond's veto powers to monetary amounts in appropriations bills, and said there is historical precedent for word vetoes.

The legislators objected to Bond's striking of "west side" from a $1.1 million measure for capitol renovation. Houdek filed with the court a letter from the appropriations chairmen stating that $96,000 would be used for legislative office space and hearing rooms.

The bill, as presented to the governor, did not contain the stipulation that $96,000 would be spent for office space and Bond said he feared that money could not be legally spent for office space as long as the words "west side" were in the bill.

Ashcroft proposes audit of tax returns

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — State Auditor John D. Ashcroft said today his office should be allowed to audit state tax returns "to determine the extent of sales tax evasion."

Ashcroft said "as much as $100 million in sales taxes were stolen in recent years by tax evaders."

"Only since 1970 has the state auditor been denied access to the returns to the Department of Revenue," he said, noting that the Missouri Constitution gives the auditor authority to post-audit all state agencies.

"The citizens of Missouri have a right to know if tax breaks are being given to privileged persons, and if a fair system of tax collection exists. An audit of the Department of Revenue, unrestricted insscope, can provide this information," Ashcroft said.

The auditor said he wants access to returns on the sales tax, individual income tax and intangible tax.

Davidson is elected road commissioner

BENTON— James E. Davidson of Scott City was selected at Monday's County Court meeting as the new Illmo- Scott City special road district commissioner to fill the unexpired term of Dr. B.F. Holly of Illmo, who resigned.

Davidson will serve the remainder of the term which expires in February 1974.

The court accepted a low bid of $1,685 from D&D Electric Co. of Dexter for installation of a new lighting system in the Circuit Court room.

Other bids submitted to the court include Burden-McClung Electric Service of Sikeston for $2,030 and Hart's Electric of Benton for $2,440.

Lights to be added to the courtroom include four overhead lights suspended by a fixture chain to a height of 12 feet above the floor and one light over the judge's bench and suspended by a fixture chain to a height of 12 feet.

The court accepted the low bid for carpeting several county offices submitted by Modern Floor Covering of Sikeston for $3,477.50.

Offices to be carpeted include the circuit clerk, Probate court, recorder of deeds, assessor, county clerk and county collector..

Williams held

KIRKWOOD— Bill Williams, approximately 35 years old, is being held at Troop C highway patrol headquarters in Kirkwood for investigation of the abduction of an Arkansas woman at 11:45 p.m. Monday from a truck stop near Matthews.

According to the highway patrol, Williams picked up Jimmy and Phyllis Dean Shannon of Hot Springs, Ark., in the truck he was driving near Little Rock. The three traveled to Missouri and stopped at Scotty's Truck Stop on Interstate 55 near Matthews. Williams told Shannon to go inside for cigarettes and left with Mrs. Shannon asleep in the sleeper cab.

The patrol said Williams was apprehended at 4:30 a.m. today and Mrs. Shannon is en route back to Arkansas.

Supreme Court says Socony can't be ejected at Cape

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri Supreme Court has upheld a lower court decision saying the Socony Mobil Oil Co., Inc., cannot be ejected from three tracts of land in Cape Girardeau.

The ruling was issued Monday.

The First National Bank of Cape Girardeau was denied its requests in circuit court for back rent since 1954, $200,000 in damages and removal of Mobile from the land. The high court upheld the lower court.

The case involves the estate of Mary H. G. Houck, who died in 1944.

Her daughter, Rebecca Frissell, leased one tract to mobil for 50 years in 1953. A second tract was inherited by a son, Giboney Houck, who leased it to Mobile in 1954 for 50 years.

The third tract was leased to Aquamsi Land Co., which in turn leased it to Mobil.

The bank acquired title to the second tract at a foreclosure sale when Giboney Houck died in 1960. Mrs. Frissell had died in 1954.

The bank contended the second tract lease was nullified because of Giboney Houck's death and that Giboney Houck had rightlly inherited the other two tracts when Mrs. Frissell died.

The lower court ruled that the leases were valid.

One tract is occupied by storage tanks. The second tract contains a terminal and pumping facility on the Mississippi River. The third has an underground pipeline.

Scott estimated that, for the Bootheel, this year's corn crop may not be over 10 per cent of the average crop. He did not compare it to last year, because of a small crop in 1972.

Statewide, the corn crop was only five per cent planted at the end of last week, lagging behind last year when planting has reached the halfway mark.

Not much wheat was planted this year, and what was planted has been damaged by water and disease. "The wheat crop doesn't look as healthy as it should," Scott said.

Scott warned that wheat growers will have to watch for army worms which get into the small grain about this time of year.

The Crop and Livestock Reporting Service reports that 28 per cent of the state's wheat crop is headed, down from last year's figure of 53 per cent at this time.

Scott reported that farmers in Butler and Stoddard counties will plant grain sorghum this year. They use it in rotation with soybeans and have found it to be a good crop for that area. The crop should be going in now, but there is more leeway for planting it. Statewide, grain sorghum planting is one per cent complete, compared with 10 per cent a year ago.

Scott warned that there may be more insect problems with all crops this year because they were planted later in the year.

The Crop and Livestock Reporting Service says plowing advanced three points last week to 17 per cent completion. This is far behind 1972 when plowing was virtually finished by this date.

Food price rise is plotted to rise slowly till year's end. That means we're supposed to get used to being hungrier a little at a time?

Stokes leads assault

There was no magic in the arm of Randy Gardener Monday afternoon, but there was in the bat of Kenny Stokes. The sophomore belted out four straight hits and led the revenge- minded SHS Bulldogs to their fourth straight triumph of the season defeating the unbeaten Hayti Indians, 6-4. In their last meeting, Gardener and Hayti bested Stokes and his untried teammates in Sikeston's first game, 9-0, as the mustachioed righthander limited Sikeston to just three hits. This time he was pounded for 10 safeties in five innings by the aroused Bulldog batters.

Winning the game for Sikeston, his third in three decisions, was junior curveball artist Richard Blankenship. The curve tossed by the young righthander set the Indians on their ears, after Stokes had hurled the first three innings. The Hayti batters, bailing out on every pitch and taking sickly cuts, reached Blankenship for just two hits -- one solid-- in four innings of relief.

The first inning of the contest gave a hint of things to come. Danny White reached first for Hayti with one out, but Gardener fanned and Maxie grounded out to strand him. The first two, Colwick and Stokes, reached for Sikeston, But, Leible grounded to White at short and Gardener whiffed Taylor and Saulter to end the first frame threat.

Two runners reached for Hayti in the second on a walk and an error, but Stokes fanned the final two to keep the game scoreless. Gardener started his own trouble in the bottom of the second. The senior pitcher was late covering first on an infield grounder off the bat of Bill Schatzley and then dropped a good throw. After that, he walked Rick Dyer and was hit on the foot by a line driver off the bat of Mitch Walker, Walker reaching first. While in considerable pain, he walked Greg Colwick to fill the sacks. Then, John Lieble stroked a two run single to left.

Despite the disrespect shown their star hurler, the Indians were not giving up. Morgan reached base on an error, leading off. White singled him to third. From there he scored on a wild pitch, White moving to second. Gardener helped his own cause with a run- scoring single and Harry Grant put Hayti ahead, two outs later, with an infield grounder which scored Gardener. The Indians led 3-2.

Their lead lasted less than an inning as the Bulldogs counted twice in the bottom of the frame. Donnie Taylor, moved up to the cleanup slot, responded with his fourth double in four games, then scored an out later on Shatzley's single to right. Eisenbach was hit by a pitch and Walker singled Shatzley home for a narrow 4-3 lead.

Richard Blankenship entered the game for Sikeston in the fourth and pitched the rest of the way very effectively, boosted by the Indians' inability to touch his sweeping curveball. The Bulldogs added single runs in the fourth and sixth innings, both driven in by John Leible. Two hits in the game raised Leible's batting mark to .424 and Stoke's four for four performance elevated his average 114 points, from .286 to .400.

The win raised the Sikeston won- lost record to 7-3. The only team to defeat them that they haven't defeated is Jackson and they will not be met again this year. The Bulldogs will try to play at least one more game before calling it quits -- that game to be some time this week.

Can your cigarette pass these 5 simple tests?

If you've ever had second thoughts about the brand of cigarette you smoke, here's a quick way to find out if it really delivers what you want.

These five simple tests will tell you a lot about quality, freshness, and taste.

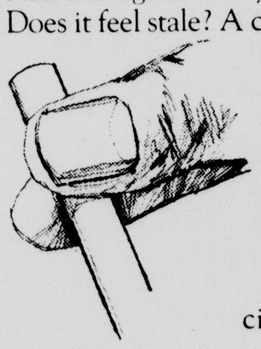
And if you make these tests with a Winston, they'll tell you why Winston smokers can point to their brand and say, "How good it is!"

Test #1 Sniff It

Take a whiff of the tobacco. Does it smell rich and fresh and appealing? If your cigarette is Winston, you'll recognize the aroma of costly Vintage Leaf Tobaccos. Winston chooses the most nearly perfect leaves money can buy. Then we age these rare tobaccos in wooden casks. We do it for the same reason you'd age a fine wine. Aging makes our tobaccos mellow and brings out that extra dimension of natural goodness.

Test #2 Feel It

Roll the cigarette in your hand. Pinch it slightly. Does it feel stale? A cigarette that's been waiting in a warehouse, or on a shelf, can lose some of its freshness. And some of its taste. But, because Winston sells so fast, every pack comes to you fresh. The fact is, on any given day, Winston is likely to be the freshest cigarette your money can buy.

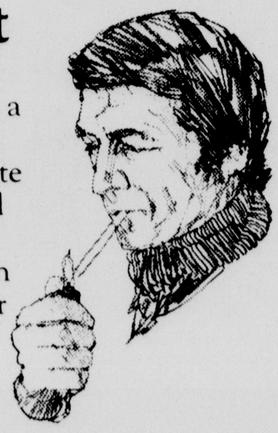


Test #3 Take a puff... before lighting

Take a puff — without lighting it. That's a good way to learn about the tobacco and the filter. If you can taste the tobaccos without lighting up, you know there's richness up front. And that the filter doesn't get in the way of the taste. Winston's exclusive Filter-Blend, a top-secret blend of different tobaccos, works with Winston's modern white filter to deliver satisfying taste in every puff.

Test #4 Light It

Does it burn evenly? Here's a critical test of the way your cigarette is made. A cigarette rolled fresh, packed full and made with care will burn evenly, draw easily. Winston always does. How does your brand shape up?



Test #5 Smoke It

What could be simpler? That's the real test of a cigarette. Can it deliver good taste and real satisfaction every time you light up? Winston can. Ask a Winston smoker. Any time. He'll tell you in four simple words: How good it is.

Ask a Winston smoker. He'll tell you

HOW GOOD IT IS.

Warning: The Surgeon General Has Determined That Cigarette Smoking Is Dangerous to Your Health.

Hawks win 13th

ORAN — The Kelly Hawks made it 13 wins in 15 games this season when coach Jim Thornsberry's District champions downed the Oran Eagles 10-0 here Monday afternoon in a Scott - Mississippi county baseball game.

Kenny Urhahn fired a two-hitter at the Eagles in posting the shutout. Urhahn also contributed to the win with two hits in three trips to the plate. Jeff Jackson had three hits and two runs-batted- in.

Keith Campbell was the starting and losing pitcher for the Eagles and Kelly jumped on him and his error pleagued mates in the top of the first inning, scoring two runs. Kelly kept the pressure on as they crossed the plate at least once in each of the five innings. Kelly added two runs in the third, three in the fourth and two in the fifth. The game was called after the bottom of the fifth frame was completed.

The Hawks racked Campbell for 11 base hits with Bob Jackson's double being the only extra base hit of the game.

Kelly plays Scott Central a doubleheader Tuesday afternoon before traveling to Van Buren to take on Scott City in the Regional tournament Friday afternoon.

Hulman rebuilds Indy

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The Indianapolis 500-mile auto race will run the 57th time May 28 with another colorful show drawing more than 250,000 persons and heard and seen by millions more around the world.

But it hasn't always been so.

In 1945, when Anton "Tony" Hulman of Terre Haute, Ind., bought the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, it was in disrepair. Interest in the Memorial Day classic had diminished after the track was closed four years during World War II. — The Speedway, which was built in 1909 as a proving ground for automobiles, is now known in some racing circles as "the house that Tony rebuilt."

The 2½-mile asphalt track is the focal point of the Speedway on the city's far west side, but it isn't the only attraction of the 539-acre property.

Hulman has replaced the ancient wooden grandstand that nearly circled the track with steel and concrete grandstands. There is now an estimated seating capacity of 235,000 and room for an additional 100,000 persons in the track infield.

Hulman has supervised construction of a more-than-100room motel, a 27-hole golf course with nine holes in the infield and an office-museum building as well as press and hospitality quarters.

Speedway officials never announced attendance figures, but an estimated 60,000 persons watched the 500 in 1946 and prize money totaled $75,000 after a prewar high of $96,250.

Hulman, whose great wealth comes from varied business and real estate interests, has made the Indy race the richest in the world of auto racing.

For the third straight year prize money this year will total more than $1 million.

His newest improvement at the Speedway is an addition to the motel to house VIP suites which rent for $10,000 a year on the second floor and $20,000 for the third-floor. There are six suites on each floor. The rooms, which overlook the track, were all rented long before the addition was completed, most of them by large companies involved in racing.

For race day, tickets for reserved seats sell for from $10 to $40, and it costs $5 a person to watch the race from the infield in the midst of one of the world's largest picnics.

Gasoline Alley, the strip of concrete that connects the garage area with the pits, provides one of the few places in major sports where fans can mingle with their heroes. In fact, drivers, owners and mechanics often have to push their way through the crowd, signing autographs and talking with excited people.

The museum of 500 and Speedway relics is free and open year-round. There is even the opportunity to ride around the track in a Speedway bus for 50 cents, except in May.

But it's the race cars, the speeds and personalities that draw most people here. Racing has changed tremendously since the first Indy 500 in 1911.

Ray Harroun won the first race in a Marmon Wasp at an average speed of 74.59 miles an hour.

Mark Donahue, last year's winner, averaged a record 162.962 m.p.h. in a winged McLaren-Offenhauser.

Fairly keeps Pirates-reeling

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ron Fairly has a good memory—but then again, nights like Monday aren't all that hard to remember.

Fairly got only one hit in five times at bat against the Pirates, but it was the big one—a solo homer in the 10th inning that lifted the Montreal Expos to a 3-2 victory and sent Pittsburgh to its sixth consecutive loss.

"I think it was a fast ball," said Fairly of his game-winning shot off Nelson Briles, "but I'm not sure. All I know is, I hit it well.

"It's easy to remember the good days," observed Fairly, who had fond memories of Briles and the Pirates even before his blast.

He hit another tie-breaking homer off Briles in a game won by the Expos earlier this season. And back in 1965, while playing for the Los Angeles Dodgers, Fairly again beat the Pirates with a last-inning homer.

In other National League baseball games, Philadelphia whipped St. Louis 10-5, Atlanta topped Houston 7-1 and San Diego beat San Francisco, also by a 7-1 count.

The New York Mets' game against the Cubs in Chicago was postponed due to cold weather, and Los Angeles and Cincinnati were not scheduled.

In the American League, Texas beat Minnesota 7-6 in the opener of a twi-night doubleheader but dropped the second game 6-4 in 11 innings, Detroit defeated the New York Yankees 8-0, Boston edged Baltimore 1-0 in 11 innings, California nipped Kansas City 3-2 in 10 innings, Cleveland slipped past Milwaukee 2-1 and Oakland beat the Chicago White Sox 5-1.

The defeat was the 14th in the last 19 games for the Pirates, last year's NL East champions. And Briles, who suffered his fourth defeat in five decisions, feels its the pitchers who must pull the club out of its rut.

"When you're not getting anything going, you're pitching has to pick you up. It's up to us."

Philadelphia scored six runs on six singles in the fourth inning to beat the Cardinals. Greg Luzinski had a single, double and triple and rookie Mike Schmidt drove in three runs.

"My swing hasn't been what I wanted it to be," said Luzinski, who came into the game batting .206. Last year he hit .281 with 18 homers.

Atlanta's Mike Lum had a three-run double and a solo homer in the Braves' victory.

"It seems like every time we come to Houston, I'm hitting good," said Lum, adding that the double was off a high, outside fast ball, the homer off a low, inside fast ball.

Rookie outfielder John Grubb's tie-breaking single sparked a five-run outburst in the seventh inning that boosted San Diego past the Giants. Jerry Morales and Clarence Gaston each drove in two runs for the Padres.

Mizzou changes defense

COLUMBIA, Mo. — The old order changeth. Missouri is forsaking its man- to- man pass defense of long usage for zone coverage. Clay Cooper chomps on his always- unlit cigar, and admits he's "excited" about the change-over.

"You just have more chance of success nowadays with the zone against the sophisticated offenses," says Clay who has studied football fashions and trends since 1947 when he joined Don Faurot's Mizzou staff.

He's logged all those 26 years at Missouri, has Clay – and this spring, coach Al Onofrio's top aide scrapped the old man- to- man playbooks, and taught the zone concept.

"It was becoming more-and- more difficult to find three guys with the ability to play man- to- man back there," says Cooper. What he's saying, in effect, is that the cycles just didn't produce enough Roger Wehrlis, John Rolands, and Butch Davises in recent years.

"Let's put it this way. You can take dedicated players without outstanding speed -- and get more mileage out of them in zone coverage. We'll still incorporate some man- to-man in our drills."

The "old dog" traditionally has a hangup about taking on new habits. What about Cooper?

"No -- I really can see three distinct advantages in the zone. First of all, you involve more people in your pass defense. Next, you present an alignment that is tougher to throw against consistently, and your chances for interception are greater.

"Finally -- and this was most surprising to me -- the zone provides much better support against the rushing game. You're watching the quarterback now -- and that receiver can't run you out of the park -- as was possible in man-to- man situations.

"And when you're primarily tracking the quarterback, you've got a better shot at the interception," Cooper summarizes.

Cooper won't rate his defensive backs at the moment because "we need to further evaluate our films this spring, and determine if some of them are better on the corners than deep."

Five lettermen are back – Co-capt. John Moseley, Steve Yount, Ken Gregory, Brad Brown and Gary Anderson. A sixth letterman, converted from quarterback, is Tony Gillick. Then there's Randy Grossart, a sophomore red-shirt, plus a pair of talented freshmen -- Chuck Banta and Jerry Williams.

Cooper indicates that "six or seven looked pretty good this spring."

Moseley, of course, is the solid guy -- a spunky bantam who led the club in interceptions. Gregory was felled in the Nebraska game by a back ailment, and that was his season. Brown and Anderson were late- season players. Yount was a sometimes starter.

Banta, who stole two passes in Saturday's football finale, is "gonna be a contender," Cooper predicts. The coach also likes Gillick's potential in a new role. Williams is another well-regarded newcomer.

Inconsistency is the trait most apt to put a player in Cooper's doghouse. "When you get beat back there, or miss a key tackle, it could be the ball game," he says.

Whoever plays Mizzou's center safety in the new set-up "should be our best athlete," Cooper says.

"He must have the perception to keep deep leverage in his area, and still be able to cover from seam-to- seam -- and yet be able to do a reasonable job up forward."

Young women score 45-21 win

The Morley young women softball stars clubbed the Morley women 45- 21 in league play Monday night.

Anna Lou Fodge picked up the win and was backed by five home runs and 27 hits.

Today is Tuesday, May 15, the 135th day of 1973. There are 230 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1940, the Netherlands surrendered to Germany in World War II.

On this date—

In 1571, Moscow was burned by the Tartars.

In 1767, Genoa sold the island of Corsica to France.

In 1862, the U.S. Congress established the Department of Agriculture.

In 1918, the first regular air mail service was started — between New York, Philadelphia and Washington.

In 1924, the Congress passed a bill putting immigration into the United States on a quota basis.

Highlights and Sidelights

UMC battle evolves over legislative cut

JEFFERSON CITY — The University of Missouri is right in the thick of the state appropriations fight now underway in the General Assembly.

University President C. Brice Ratchford, angered by a $4 million cut from the University's extension services budget, last week accused the legislature of trying to tell the University's administrators and board of curators how to run the school.

"If they did not have the money and left it to us to make the cuts where we thought best, that's one thing," Ratchford told a St. Louis news conference. "This is another."

Ratchford, a University vice president in charge of the Extension Division before his appointment as President in 1970, said approximately one-half of the 1,400 persons involved in extension services will have to be dismissed if the cut is retained in the final appropriations bill adopted by the legislature.

State Senator A. Clifford Jones (R-Brentwood) sponsored the Senate Appropriations Committee amendment that deleted the $4 million from a $15.9 million extension services budget. Jones, a graduate of Princeton University and self- confessed "Ivy League snob", charges that the University spends too much money on the far- flung operations of its extension division and that, despite the support of the legislature, it has never achieved "academic excellence".

As a land grant institution, the University is required to have programs of agricultural extension to assist farmers in developing better ways of producing crops and livestock. But only $4-5 million of the nearly $16 million extension budget goes for agriculture-related programs, according to Jones. The rest of the division's budget goes for such diverse programs as radio features, adult education, rural transportation services and others. The adult education programs came in for special criticism in the Senate Appropriations Committee where Senators called the program a costly duplicate of programs already being carried out by various junior colleges around the state.

According to Ratchford, the University's extension programs, which serve approximately one million persons, are regarded as an answer to two educational problems: Wider access to more students and limiting the need for building expansion.

The University requested $118 million from the state's general revenue fund for the year, and probably will suffer a $13 million or so cut from that figure. Still, an eight per cent increase over last year's $97 million is a considerable boost.

The House of Representatives already has adopted a $107 million budget for the University which includes the $15 million recommendation for extension services.

Rep. Steve Vossmeyer (D-St. Louis), a first term legislator who lost in his efforts to cut the University budget by $2 million on the House floor, blames "a great political fear" of the University on the part of his fellow representatives for his defeat.

"Don't get involved or you've had it," Vossmeyer said he was warned. He said other legislators told him stories of men who opposed the University and then found themselves getting defeated during the next election.

Ratchford denies the University has ever tried to defeat a legislative opponent. "We've not turned any dogs loose," he says. "Why should we? We won."

If the University draws political support from the thousands of alumni who are quick to defend their alma mater, there also is antagonism as a result of letters the legislators receive from angry constituents whose sons and daughters are refused admission to the University. Ratchford spends a great deal of his time in legislative committee hearings defending the school's admission policies.

The University also is under attack from many faculty members who are unhappy with the priorities the administration is following. A mild "brain drain" currently is in progress at the University as some qualified professors are leaving for greener pastures. There is some fear that recent resignations mark a decline in academic quality.

The future rests in the hands of the University administration and the General Assembly. The outcome of the current squabble over the budget may be indicative of the course the University will finally take.

The weather finally gets right for cotton

Skylab poses new problem; lab heats up

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The crippled Skylab space station developed a new problem today when temperatures of 100 degrees were recorded inside the laboratory. The space agency called it a serious problem but still hoped to launch three astronauts to link up with the station on Sunday.

"It's too early to tell if we're in an unmanageable situation," reported flight director Neil Hutchinson. "But the Skylab cluster is hot and it's a problem that we'll have to be able to solve if the mission is to continue."

Hutchinson also reported a problem with a stabilizing gyroscope in the spaceship control system.

These add to the difficulties of space agency experts who are trying to salvage three manned missions from America's first space station.

The laboratory was launched unmanned into a perfect 272- mile high orbit Monday, but suffered a severe blow when two of six solar panels failed to extend properly.

The panels are designed to convert the sun's energy to electrical power. With two panels inoperative, the power supply of the Skylab was cut in half.

Skylab 1 astronauts Charles Conrad Jr., Dr. Joseph P. Kerwin and Paul J. Weitz were to have ridden another rocket into space today to link up with the station for a 28- day space adventure.

But the space agency late Monday postponed the astronauts' liftoff until Sunday to give experts a chance to work out a new flight plan adapted to the reduced power supply.

The failure of the two solar panels to deploy was traced to a mishap 63 seconds after launching of the Saturn 5 rocket when an aluminum micrometeorite shield ripped away from the side of Skylab, damaging or jamming the wing- like devices.

Hutchinson said the absence of the shield, only six- hundredths of an inch thick, apparently is responsible for the heat problems aboard the spaceship.

"It's like Houston on a hot, humid day in there," said the flight director, who was speaking at a news conference at the Johnson Space Center near Houston.

He said temperatures of 100 degrees had been recorded in the center of the 85- ton workshop. Normal temperatures would be in the 60s or 70s, he said.

Air- conditioning units are aboard the craft, but to operate them now would be a serious drain on an already depleted power supply.

Hutchinson said that although "we have a serious anomoly and don't know yet how to cope with it," he was hopeful engineers would come up with a solution in the next two or three days, in time to launch the astronauts on Sunday.

He said the gyroscope problem was not as serious as the electrical or heat problems.

Asked to assess the possibility of a launch Sunday, Hutchinson said: "I've not seen a show stopper yet."

Skylab Project Director William C. Schneider was optimistic at a Monday night news conference that all three planned Skylab missions could be salvaged. But that was before the latest problems cropped up.

"We still have high hopes that they can stay up 28 days, but during the last few days their activity will have to be curtailed because of the power shortage," he said.

"Everybody seems to be holding a post- mortem on Skylab," he said. "But we think we can achieve a lot of our objectives."

And he said there is still a possibility that the Skylab 2 and 3 flights, each scheduled for 56 days later in the year, might be fulfilled. He said that assessment probably can't be made until after the Skylab 1 voyage.

The laboratory, as large as a three- bedroom house, was lofted into a perfect 272- mile- high orbit Monday by a Saturn 5 rocket. Everything was going so well during the

Planting season begins -- late

After a few dsys without rain and quite a bit of sunshine, water- soaked fields around the Bootheel are finally drying out enough to support farm equipment, and planting of crops has finally resumed in Southeast Missouri.

The crop being heavily planted this week is cotton, although it is late in the year to plant cotton. The cutoff date for the government cotton program is May 18. After that date, if the farmer cannot plant cotton, due to adverse weather conditions or other reasons, he may request to plant soybeans and still receive his cotton program benefits.

However, farmers who want to do so must file a written request at the county office after May 18. He must attempt to plant through May 18, according to Kenneth Vowels, county executive director of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office in Benton.

Cotton planting has been picking up the last few days, with farmers doing minimum field preparation work due to the lateness in the season. Joe Scott, state extension agronomist at the Delta Center in Portageville, said that if good weather continues this week, farmers will have most of the cotton planted, that is going to be planted. He added that few farmers in the Sikeston area will plant after the Friday cutoff deadline.

"Farmers have put in more cotton in the last few days than they have this spring," Scott said.

Scott estimates that the cotton crop in the Bootheel will be about 40 per cent of last year's crop. Vowels estimates the final cotton crop in Scott County will be 25 to 50 per cent of what farmers planted last year, depending on the weather.

The state Crop and Livestock Reporting Service says that statewide four per cent of the cotton crop has been planted compared with 79 per cent a year ago.

Many farmers are working into the night to get cotton planted.

Soybean planting is just getting started, Scott said. Land currently under water will probably be planted in soybeans if the land dries out enough. Soybeans should be planted the latter part of this month or early June, Scott added. "The big crop this year will be soybeans," he said.

The problem this year with soybeans will be getting good quality planting seeds because of a shortage of the quality seed, Scott says.

The Crop and Livestock Reporting Service reports soybean planting is just beginning statewide, compared to seven per cent completion in 1972.

Most of the corn that will be planted in the area has been planted, Scott said. Vowels reports that in Scott County the corn crop will be about 20 per cent of what was planted last year.

"It is getting awfully late to plant corn," Scott said. Some may still plant some corn for livestock feed, he added. Corn is usually planted in April.

$2,000 check forged

BENTON — Cotton Holyfield of Sikeston Route Two reported to the Scott County sheriff's department Monday that a check for $2,000 drawn on his bank account had been forged.

According to Deputy Sheriff Gerald Inman, a man phoned Barry Ferrell Friday at Bank of Sikeston and told him he was Cotton Holyfield and that he had written a $2,000 check to a man named Merilyn Woodall, who would be coming to the bank to cash it. Ferrell was told if there wasn't enough money in his (Holyfield's) personal account to cover the check, he was to draw money out of his business account.

Inman said the man came into the bank, talked to Ferrell, received the money and left.

Holyfield told the sheriff's department that he had never written a check for this amount and had not called the bank about such a check.

An investigation is being conducted by Inman.

FAA approves airport grant

The Federal Aviation Administration has approved a $139,461 grant for improvements at the Sikeston Airport, it was announced today in Washington D.C.

The improvements are considered the first phase of the project, including reconstruction of the existing runway apron, runway and taxiway resurfacing, and installation of a visual approach slope indicator. The second pahse of the project will include extending the existing runway 500 feet, surfacing the crosswind runway and acquiring airspace easements near the airport.

The grant is about $4,000 less than the $143,500 requested by the city. The FAA eliminated from the request funds to resurface aircraft parking areas inside hangars. City Manager Jim Huff said the reason for FAA's action was apparently because the hangars were considered the private property of Cotton Holifield, airport manager.

All the money needed for the first phase has been obtained, Huff said. The Ozark Regional Planning Commission approved a grant of $70,000 in March. The state is putting in $25,000 and the city is using $117,000 of its own money for the entire project.

The second phase of the project will cost about $200,000. Huff said the city can get 50 to 75 per cent of the money from outside sources, including the FAA.

Huff said bids should be called for in late June or early July. Work could begin in August.

Huff said if approval of funds for the second phase of the project appear close this summer, the city may hold off work on the airport until the funds are approved. Then the whole project could be done at once, Huff said. The reason for splitting the work into two projects was because a time lag involved in preparing an environmental impact statement could run the project out past the cutoff date for the Ozark funds.

Plan group will elect

The Planning and Zoning Commission will meet at 7:30 p.m. today in the City Administrative Building.

On the meeting agenda are election officers and consideration of the Pegues trailer court proposal.

Disaster aid center to close

NEW MADRID — Wednesday is the final day for persons with flood losses to apply for assistance at the federal disaster service center, which has been open since May 7, in the community building on Mill Street.

Following closing of the New Madrid center and the Charleston center, plans call for mobile teams to continue service in the areas.

Teams representing all agencies but employment will be in Arnold on Monday, Ste. Genevieve on Tuesday, Cape Girardeau on Wednesday, Charleston on Thursday and Caruthersville on Friday.

Prosecutor warns against illegal sale of firearms

Scott County Prosecuting Attorney Jim Moore says some people have been selling and buying firearms without the authority to do so.

Moore said it is unlawful for any person other than a manufacturer, wholesaler or retail dealer to directly or indirectly buy, sell, borrow, loan, give away, trade, barter, deliver or receive any pistol, revolver or other firearm of a size which may be concealed upon the person, unless the buyer, borrower or person receiving the weapon obtains a permit authorizing the person to acquire the weapon.

Moore said anyone convicted of selling a firearm without a permit can be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary for a period up to five years, or by imprisonment in the county jail for not less than six months, or by a fine, not less than $50 or more than $500, or by both fine and imprisonment in the county jail.

"Many people are not familiar with this law and are committing the crime innocently," Moore said.

Moore said a person who wants to obtain such a permit may go to the sheriff and request one. If the sheriff feels the person applying for the permit is of lawful age and good moral character and that the granting of a permit will not endanger public safety, he may issue a permit.

The permit will state the date of issuance and that the permit is invalid 30 days after the date, the name and address of the person to whom granted and the name of the person from whom the weapon is acquired. The nature of the transaction and a full description of the weapon must be countersigned by the person to whom it is granted in the presence of the sheriff.

A 50- cent fee is charged for issuing of this permit, Moore said.

Flood cleanup--part 1

Test water supply, disposal system

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The University of Missouri Extension Service has prepared a packet of information to help flood victims who must clean up. This the the first in a series of articles reviewing this information for readers of The Daily Standard. More information is available at the county extension office. The information for this article was taken from a United States Department of Agriculture publication.)

Now that flood waters are beginning to recede and the sun is showing its face a little more often, many Bootheel residents face the long and tedious job of cleaning up.

The first thing that should be done is to see that everybody is safe and out of danger of new flood crests, fire and falling buildings.

Persons involved should give full cooperation to local authorities, rescue squads and local Red Cross chapter.

Shelter, food, clothing, transportation, medical supplies and hospitalization, if available, should then be arranged for the sick and injured.

During and after a flood, health regulations for personal and community protection against epidemics must be carefully obeyed, and any violations reported.

While cleaning up after the flood, test plumbing fixtures by flushing with buckets of waters. Have the sanitary disposal systems inspected by health authorities to assure proper condition.

The water supply must be tested for purity. Emergency supplies of drinking water should be boiled or chlorinated. No food should be used that has been contaminated by flood waters.

If any fresh foods have come into contact with floodwaters, destroy them and discard or use other foods, according to recommendations.

All private water supplies must be pumped until the water is clear. Construction defects must be corrected and walls, casings and pumping devices cleaned and disinfected.

As soon as the floodwaters recede, a vigorous clean-up of the premises can be started. This should include removing doors, cleaning and drying the house before trying to live in it.

When entering buildings, use flashlights but no matches because of the possibility of escaping gas. Occupants should not turn on electric lights, furnace or fixtures until tested by an electrician. People will also have to watch for nails, splinters, holes in floors or walls and falling of wet plaster.

Basements must be drained or pumped free of water. The stoves, or heating plant, should be put into operating condition as soon as possible because heat hastens drying. Before using heaters, flues and machines, remove sediment from them.

All furniture and rugs should be taken outside and spread to air and dry.

As soon as possible, start cleaning all bedding and clothing, using approved methods for safety and to minimize damage.

Next in the series of articles on cleaning up after a flood will concern repairing the house and farm buildings after a flood with materal prepared by Ralph L. Ricketts, extension engineer.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

There is a difference in an open mind and being empty headed.

* * *

We attended the 23rd annual banquet of the Chamber of Commerce at Ramada Inn, Thursday, April 26. The main speaker was L. Goebel Patten, West Frankfort, Ill. The first part of his speech was very entertaining, the second part, when he got ready to tell us what we needed, what we ought to do and the rest of it, I left to the rest of the folks. I was glad to see and hear Dr. Popp get his award, he is a conscientious man who has really made the hospital with its intensive care unit. We hope every body is as happy over Don Agnew's election as president as we are, we think he will make a good one, but of course, he will need some help from everybody and I think everybody is ready to give it to him. They want to keep the Sikeston Chamber of Commerce up on top of the list in the states.

* * *

You can make any mistake in stating history, and not one person in ten can point it out.

* * *

You may say "don't" when you should say "doesn't" but don't worry about it.

* * *

WHO'S ON FIRST?

Well, let's see. First it was Willy Brandt to Washington, calling on President Nixon this month but barely making the front page because of Watergate. Now the West German chancellor is back home getting ready to receive Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev for four days, beginning Friday, May 18. After visiting Bonn, Brezhnev turns around and repacks his bags for a trip to Washington next month -- maybe. Finally, this fall, it will be Nixon's turn to get away for a tour of European capitals.

Does all of this coming and going mean that great things are in the making? Or is it just that spring weather causes everybody to grab any excuse to get away for awhile? It's hard even for the pundits to find any problems between the West Germans and Russians so pressing that they require summitry.

Brandt's Ostplitik, or eastern strategy, has long been welcomed in Moscow and ratified in Bonn. Reconciliation between West Germany and its Communist neighbors has been under way since Brandt took office in 1969. Given these circumstances, it might be assumed that Brezhnev is only practicing the art of spreading good will in a capitalist land – perhaps as a tune-up for his descent on Washington.

* * *

"Would you hire yourself?" asks the National Association of Manufacturers. The Association then continues, "This was the provocative headline on an editorial we ran across recently in a company house organ. It's a good question. The editorial seems worthy of a wider audience, and so here are a few quotes from it. 'If you were your boss and needed someone to fill your present position, would you hire yourself? If you had the choice of a dozen people you presently work with, would you be the first choice to fill your position? Or would you have to look around for someone with more initiative, interest in the job, and a better attitude toward the work and fellow employees?' Then the editoral goes on to point out that if we are honest with ourselves, we are each the best judge of our weaknesses and strengths. It's worth thinking about -- would you hire yourself?"

* * *

It seems to the average man that the opportunities that come to him are those that knock on his door on a cold morning so he has to get up in his bare feet and coax in.

NEW YORK (AP) — Things we could all do without:

Tunnels without a light at the end of them.

Female chauvinism.

Arrogance in people under 40.

Self-pity in people over 40.

The smugness that all Martini drinkers have after downing the third one.

The master key to Watergate.

The task of writing our own epitaphs.

The task of picking the first female face that should be carved on Mt. Rushmore.

Having to look for sympathy when you're the last guy in your block to come down with the flu.

Getting elected historian of your local PTA chapter.

Listening to a first-year student of the violin trying to tune his instrument the morning after you stayed three hours too long at a cocktail party.

Being the runt of your class in kindergarten.

Getting kissed by a red-haired girl at a birthday party who did so only because her mother told her that if she didn't nobody would get any ice cream.

Getting favorably mentioned in the last will and testament of a guy who had nothing on earth left to leave anybody but good will.

Enemies who praise you behind your back.

Weeks with seven Mondays in them.

The memory of lost Aprils that can never come again.

Bosses who, when they give you a $5 merit raise, manage to leave you with the guilty feeling that your selfish greed may plunge the firm into bankruptcy.

Anybody who either likes or dislikes you for the wrong reasons.

Doors that are opened by someone other than the one your heart hopes will.

Looking back at an action you'd like to undo but know you never can.

Looking forward to something you think you need more than breath itself — and knowing you will never have it.

A house with a yard too small to pitch horseshoes in.

The sight of a blind beggar with an old dog shuffling down an empty street on a rainy day.

Pretzels without salt.

An after-dinner speaker with nothing to say and too much time to say it in.

Guys who think they should have a higher seat in heaven because they always drink their coffee black.

People who are more eager to provide you with good advice than a good example.

A lovely stretch of shining beach but no one dear and near to walk it with.

From these and other distresses and turbulences of mind and spirit, deliver us, Amen.

Failure to yield the right of way was a contributing cause of over 4,000 traffic accidents investigated last year by the Missouri State Highway Patrol.

"The failure of a motorist to yield the right of way can often be attributed to that driver's lack of courtesy and common sense," Colonel Sam S. Smith, the Superintendent of the Missouri State Highway Patrol, stated. "Right of way rules are based on consideration for others in the immediate traffic picture along with sound prudent judgment in regard to the safe manuevering of a vehicle. A driver who neglects to show courtesy and common sense behind the wheel has a very good chance of being involved in an accident."

The Patrol Superintendent then noted a few of the basic right of way safety rules: Yield the right of way to a vehicle which has already entered the intersection from a different highway, provided, there is no form of traffic control at the intersection; a driver within an intersection who intends to turn left must yield the right of way to vehicles approaching from the opposite direction and within the intersection or so close as to constitute an immediate hazard; yield the right of way to pedestrians crossing at intersections in accordance with regulations and when they are crossing on marked crosswalks between intersections; and when two drivers reach an uncontrolled intersection at approximately the same time, the driver on the left should yield the right of way to the driver on his right.

"Failure to yield the right of way accounts for many traffic accidents in the State," Smith continued. "I urge drivers to know all the right of way rules and to obey them for safety's sake."

YOUR CHOICE IS CONTROL SPENDING OR RAISE TAXES

Closing those famous tax "loopholes" won't do the job if Congress expects to spend $15 billion or more in excess of the presently proposed budget. Instead, it will be necessary to lay more taxes on the "little fellow" because there are more of us. It will mean lopping off the average taxpayers' deductions – as, for example, the tax breaks presently given for such things as dependent children and charitable contributions. This would be about as popular with the average taxpayer as a polecat at a picnic.

With certain constituents back home screaming for increased funds to support cities, schools, welfare and you-name it and some organized groups pushing for such things as national health insurance, with a $70 or $80 billion price tag, it is little wonder that Congress has trouble not spending more money. Politically, there are rough days ahead for our elected representatives. As one Washington spokesman put it, "Congress is going to have to exercise its ultimate responsibility and realize they can't have it both ways" -- spending more without more taxes.

Since we've been advised that Congress is hearing from all the big spending groups, but is not hearing from people who want to hold spending in check, we urge our readers to write our congressmen in the Senate and House to support the five budgetary reform proposals contained in the Brock bill (S.40), and the Robinson bill (H.R. 2406).

Don't toss away this rare chance to control federal spending -- a chance to curb deficit spending ... to lessen inflationary pressures ...to set up machinery that will provide better Congressional control over the budget.

DIFFERING LOAN GUIDES CRITICIZED BY EAGLETON

During a trip to flood disaster areas of Missouri last week Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton (D-Mo.) noted the Small Business Administration and the Farmers Home Administration have different guidelines in making loans.

The S.B.A. is making loans to homeowners and small businessmen at the one per cent interest rate with a $5,000 forgiveness feature in connection with storms or floods before April 10 — the date the new and more stringent disaster relief amendments went into effect.

The Farmers Home Administration, however, takes the position that only 5 per cent loans are proper, abolishing its 1 per cent loan program for any disasters that occurred this year.

Eagleton explained the inequities involved:

"A small farmer who was wiped out by the flood is eligible only for a 5 per cent F.H.A. loan with no forgiveness feature," the senator said. "But the man who sells him feed and equipment whose business is right next door can get a 1 per cent S.B.A. loan with the first $5,000 forgiven. Even more inequitable, the farmer who raises cattle can receive only a 5 per cent F.H.A. loan to help repair his losses while the feed lot operator to whom he sells the cattle for the far more generous S.B.A. program."

Eagleton pointed out the Office of Emergency Preparedness told him in early April that because the Missouri floods predated enactment of the new law, disaster victims in the state would be eligible for 1 per cent loans from both S.B.A. and F.H.A.

"No technical, legal argument can justify patent discrimination among disaster victims," he said. "Or rationalize the penalty levied on farmers merely because their small business is of a slightly different character than the business of farm processors and middlemen. Measured by need, they are all of one class- disaster victims — and they deserve equal treatment."

The senator sent a telegram to the White House requesting that the matter be cleared up. He also intends to introduce an amendment later this week when the S.B.A. bill is on the Senate floor to insure equal treatment for all who seek disaster loans, regardless of the agency involved.

THE NAME WITHDRAWN

Governor Christopher S. Bond, inexperienced as he is, is not so inexperienced that he does not recognize a problem that he himself created. We refer to his recent attempt to name a man to be director of the State Personnel Division.

Governor Bond, who it seemed to us, attempted in his campaign for the office, to put himself above political activity of any kind, ran against the "Establishment" and said he was going to give Missouri a better deal than the state had had.

But Governor Bond is human and being a Republican, it was only natural that he should lean toward Republicans. To us that is what politics is all about. But as time went on the young millionaire became more and more imbued with the spirit of GOP or personal candidates.

He wanted a man named Edward E. Haynes to be director of the State Personnel Division. But Mr. Haynes was way down on the list of applicants. In fact, he was fifth on the list and the name must be selected from a list no lower than third spot.

Governor Bond, still anxious to name "his" man for the post, wrote two of the members on the panel of names and asked them to step aside so he could name Mr. Haynes. Then the fur started to fly.

Both Democratic and Republican leaders let it be known right off that they were unhappy with what Governor Bond had done. They had threatened to turn down the Governor's choice. Some of the real vocal opposition to Governor Bond came from his own party.

But seeing the handwriting on the wall, Governor Bond did what apparently was the wise thing to do — he withdrew the name of Mr. Haynes and now he will be replaced by someone else. That is the way politics turns.

The withdrawal of Mr. Haynes' name is the second one the Governor has had to withdraw. Members of the Senate rejected a Bond-appointed member of the Board of Curators at the University of Missouri. So it can be seen that Governor Bond is getting a good baptism into the field of politics that he seems to know so little about.

NOT MUCH ACTION

Some small boys were playing football at school recess. When the teachers arrived to watch them, they saw two boys standing about six yards apart looking rather disconsolate and bored.

"Why aren't you boys playing?" asked one teacher.

"We can't," sniffed one of them. "We're the goalposts."

* * *

Mother: Why did you kick your brother in the stomach?

Daughter: He turned around.

* * *

The little boy was playing in the yard when a neighbor's friendly collie dog came over and licked him on the face. The frightened youngster's screams brought the dog's owner out on the run.

"Did he bite you?" inquired the owner.

"No, but he tasted me," came the tearful reply.

HALT INFLATION, TOO

Rising prices are only the symptoms of inflation. The cause of inflation is the increase, by government, of money and credit, much of it through deficit spending. Deficit spending is caused by spending more money than taxes bring in.

The people still ultimately control this government. It is difficult for the people to exercise control since government has grown so large and unwieldly at the federal level, but if the people will organize, they can regain control of their government.

The people are speaking loudly and clearly in election after election that they don't wany any higher taxes. Votes at every level are proving this and elected officials are at last getting the message. Inflation of the supply of money and credit, which means ever-rising prices, must be halted, too, before the people and the Republic will be safe.

Runaway inflation ruined the Weimer Republic of Germany after World War I and paved the way for the rise of Hitler and his national socialism. Communists have long preached to each other that they could destroy the United States and capitalism through inflation. Good working people should get organized and get busy to halt the rise in taxes and halt inflation, too. Inflation is the most vicious of hidden taxes and hurts the old, the poor and the helpless much more than it hurts anyone else, although everybody suffers in the long run. Inflation can be halted. It will be halted when the people demand an end to higher taxes and deficit spending. It is too late not to get organized and get started. HLH

Spirits of '76? Democratic- Labor Coalition Kicks It Off With Scoop Jackson- Hubert Humphrey Team

WASHINGTON — Meanwhile, back on the ranch. . .

Some of the best Democratic party brains and strategists, though grateful for the political manna deluging them daily, hear from their outposts that "the people" are more interested in mugging than bugging. So the party's new leaders, working closely, though quietly, with labor's high command, are revising their tactics, revising the organization's position papers, and preparing to go to the country on once untouchable issues of violent crime in the streets as well as the high cost of bread.

The "center" has it. And this actually is the Coalition for a Democratic Majority now swinging into action. And that always means a fund- raiser.

The first such bread-breaking-- and making--- will be a gentle affair of unity and fraternity at the home of Mrs. Dean Acheson, widow of Harry Truman's Secretary of State, on Monday, May 21. It will honor Sens. Henry "Scoop" Jackson and Hubert H. Humphrey--- which sounds mightly like a ticket. Few realists now talk of 1976. But the Watergate sluice gates are irrigating many a political mind once thought to be utterly dry of appeal to the nation.

The Coalition is the united front vehicle for the Democrats and labor and youth and blacks--- all the way from the AFL— CIO leaders to Brooklyn's black Congresswoman Shirley Chisholm and the new class of centrist intellectuals such as Harvard's James Q. Wilson, who is advising the group on "violent crime."

On the Coalition's 40-member board are such national labor chiefs as Bud Raftery of the painters, Al Shanker of the teachers, and Walter Burke of "steel." It is understandable that the Coalition isn't eager to show a high labor profile. But that's where the action is.

It is not facetious to report that the Coalition, labor and the Democratic National Committee are one big happy family. During the all- day May 10 session of the party's 61-member Advisory Council, there was fraternity even between McGovern and some of those close to labor--- such as the unions' very own presidential candidate Scoop Jackson.

Fact is, it now appears that the AFL— CIO Committee on Political Education (COPE) will help finance and actively support McGovern's bid for reelection.

There's general agreement that Jackson, who has preponderant labor support, for the moment is "the candidate." Labor's general headquarters watch him, nurse him politically, look out for his image, and are gratified by his domestic and foreign policies which parallel those of the official AFL— CIO Executive Council statements.

Thus there has been considerable discussion of a speech made by Chicago's Mayor Richard Daley last March---- which got little national coverage— during which he virtually nominated Jackson.

At the Cook County (Ill.) Democratic annual dinner, Mayor Daley said either, "God willing, he (Jackson) will be our next President," or "With the help of God, he will lead this nation." Both versions have come through. Then the mayor--- one of the last symbols of the Big City Machine--- said, in effect, the country couldn't have a more worthy one, and the Democratic party couldn't serve the nation better than designating Jackson its standard bearer.

This is quite an endorsement, early though it comes. It is being interpreted as the abandonment of Ted Kennedy, who can have second place on the ticket whenever he wishes. But he is known to have told friends in more earthy language, "I'm not going to get my backside shot off for second place. If I run, it's the head of the ticket."

This time much will be decided by the labor coalition. Whatever else Watergate has done, it has united labor. So enthusiastic was the independent United Auto Workers over the AFL— CIO criticism of Watergate this past week, that UAW president Leonard Woodcock and his high command endorsed it and had his public relations people call the AFL— CIO to report their action.

So, with a margin for inherent political fratricide which breaks out regularly in any party, labor and the new Democratic leadership are united--- especially for the '74 congressional election.

But the White House hasn't conceded the labor vote yet. Practically at the side of Frank Fitzsimmons at a huge banquet honoring him in the Washington Hilton here last Thursday night were such intimates of President Nixon as ex- Atty. Gen. Richard Kleindienst, Treasury Secretary George Shultz and even Herb Stein, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers.

And to the grandest of White House diplomatic state dinners have been invited such national labor leaders as the United Papermakers' president Joe Tonelli; the general president of the Laborers International, Peter Fosco; the electrical brotherhood's president Charles Pillard; the iron workers' Jack Lyons; the bricklayers: Tom Murphy; the plasterers: Joe Power; and Arcy Degni who succeeded Pete Brennan as president of the New York State Building and Construction Trades Council.

Dick Nixon's side hasn't yet lost this tug of war. We'll know who wins sooner than 1976. The AFL— CIO meets in national convention Oct. 18 in Bal Harbour (Fla.) and now is preparing its position papers-- and invitation list.

Will the President be invited to speak as he has traditionally; And will he be gung ho enough to accept? Those conventions are worth watching— like reading the stars.

Last time both Dick Nixon and George McGovern spoke. Who will it be this time?

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:

Nixon Not A Waterbugger

WASHINGTON-- The question hangs heavily over the Watergate horror. How deeply is President Nixon implicated in the crimes of his subordinates?

The answer is known, of course, only to a few White House insiders who are disposed to protect the President. Nevertheless, we have sought them out and have asked hard questions.

Those privy to the oval office recall that the President was totally absorved with foreign affairs during the Watergate gestation. He has a strong sense of presidential priorities, they say. He doesn't like to be distracted by minor matters when he is concentrating on a major problem.

While G. Gordon Liddy was plotting the Watergate break-in and bugging in Attorney General John Mitchell's offices in early February 1972, the President was preparing for his Peking trip. He returned home on February 28.

HANOI OFFENSIVE

Two days later, the North Vietnamese struck with their surprise spring offensive. The President was wholly occupied with the military crisis in Vietnam throughout April while the Waterbuggers were recruited and equipped.

On May 8, he mined Haiphong harbor, an act which he feared might cause the cancellation of his Moscow visit. This crowded out all other problems, aides recall, as he awaited the Kremlin's reaction and prepared for the summit meeting. He arrived in Moscow on May 22 as the Waterbuggers were reconnoitering the Democratic layout in preparation for the first break- in.

Throughout this period, say aides, subordinates didn't bother him about politics. He usually holed up with his Vietnam- China- Russia paperwork in one of his hideouts. An occasional political poll, memo or clipping would reach his desk, they remember. Usually, it would come back with a scribbled "H," referring it to staff chief H.R. Haldeman. Some were marked both "H" and "C," which meant it should also be called to the attention of troubleshooter Charles Colson.

'IDIOTS!'

Everyone who had access to the President remembers he was angry and surprised by news of the Watergate arrest on June 17. He exploded with expletives, they recall. The kindest word he had for those responsible was "idiots!"

He immediately assigned counsel John Dean, then a presidential favorite, to find out whether anyone in the White House was involved. Aides who heard the President discuss this assignment swear he wanted Dean to make sure the White House was clean, not to obstruct the investigation.

The President was more suspicious but less concerned about the campaign committee across the street at 1701 Pennsylvania Avenue. "It was assumed around the White House," recalls one insider, "that Watergate was strictly a Keystone Kops, 1701 type operation."

The suspicion centered on Jeb Stuart Magruder, the deputy campaign director. Two months before the election, John Ehrlichman urged that Magruder be fingered as the campaign official who authorized the Waterbugging. The decision not to throw Magruder to the wolves, says one source, had the President's approval.

Congressional sources also say that L. Patrick Gray, as acting FBI director, warned the President as early as July 6 that the men around him were misusing both the FBI and CIA. "You are being mortally wounded by the men around you," Gray is quoted as telling the President.

Misplaced Loyalty

Richard Nixon places a high premium on loyalty, which he believes in giving as well as receiving. The men around him, indeed, were selected more for their loyalty than their ability.

It simply didn't occur to the President, in the opinion of those who know him, that such trusted aides as Haldeman and Ehrlichman would deceive him.

Of course, no one knows what Haldeman or Ehrlichman may have told the President in private. But there was never any hint around the White House, say our sources, that Nixon had any inkling of the payoffs to defendants to keep their mouths shut, the destruction of incriminating evidence and the obstruction of justice.

Certainly, he wanted to control the Watergate investigation and keep it from becoming a major embarrassment. He may even have congratulated Dean for helping to soften the blow, although a search of his meticulous records doesn't show the September 17 visit when Dean reputedly claimed the President told him: "Good job, John. Bob (Haldeman) told me what a great job you've done."

Hid Roles

But our sources are convinced that Dean, Mitchell, Ehrlichman and Haldeman concealed from the President their alleged involvement in the illegal cover- up.

Despite his grim, brooding nature, Nixon also has a gentle, compassionate Quaker side. One aide told us that after his name appeared briefly in the Watergate headlines, the President called him in not to demand an explanation but to console him. For an hour, Nixon told about the rough times he had been through and urged his assistant to relax and not let the notoriety get him down.

It is painful for the President to fire anyone, least of all a close associate. He went through several sleepless nights, say aides, before he could being himself to oust Haldeman and Ehrlichman. After the confrontation, they heard, the emotion welled up in his eyes.

The President's involvement in the spying- sobotage operation, however, was less innocent. We'll report on this in a future column.

Daughter-in-law, 5 years younger, calls her Mother

Dear Ann Landers: Our son is 24 years old. He began seeing a divorced women who is 37, and looks every day of it. I was sure the affair would blow over and said nothing to indicate my disapproval. A few weeks ago they announced their engagement, which was a shock to both my husband and me. This woman is only five years younger than I am, Ann. Need I tell you how I felt when she started to call me "mother" the day after the engagement was announced?

Last night she called me "Mother" four times during dinner. It ruined my appetite and I got the hiccups during the meal which added to my embarrassment. My husband seemed to think it was funny. I could have killed him.

What should I do about it? Obviously she is doing this to make me feel older and to remind me that soon she will be a member of the family--- whether I like it or not. I'd appreciate your advice.--- Excedrin Headache

Dear Ex: Get down to basics. The next time she calls you "Mother," ask her to call you by your first name. The doll is going to be around awhile and there's no sense in going through life with hiccups and indigestion.

Dear Ann Landers: I could never ask my mother this question--- she'd kill me. But I do need an answer. Please help me. When I was 15 I made a very big mistake. I was lucky. I didn't get pregnant. I am 18 now and going with a wonderful guy who respects me very much. We are talking about getting engaged when I graduate from high school in a few months and I need to know something. Can a fellow tell if a girl is a virgin? I don't want to go into my past history. Will he know?— No I.D. Please

Dear N.: In most instances there is no definite, irrefutable, physical evidence of virginity. If he's as wonderful as you say, he won't ask questions.

Dear Ann Landers: I would like to address this letter to "Yes, This Means You." The poor woman sounds so sure of her husband I hate to take the wind out of her sails.

I feel terribly sorry for her, or for ANY wife who is 100 per cent certain her husband will never stray because she's a hot number and their sex life is great. Of course, she may be right, if she's lucky enough to have a mature spouse. But usually the men are not so mature. It's a shock for a middle- aged woman to discover that the old boy is stashing girlie magazines and stag movies and bringing home novelty- store tricks to rev up his sex life. After the shock wears off, she figures that if thousands of people are getting their jollies out of these things that maybe they are normal and she's nuts.

Finally she goes to a psychiatrist (where her husband really ought to be) and learns that she's O.K. but he is stuck back there at the 12- to- 14- year- old level. She then has two choices. She can either dump him, or she can be a loving and patient wife and hope her feelings stay alive while he works through his sexual adolescence. She then admits to herself that nobody changes anybody. Everybody has to change himself. And that is the beginning of wisdom.--- I'm Talking About Us, Dear

Dear Talking: Truer words were never spoken. I hope the thousands of women who have this problem will clip today's column and read it when the old boy regresses. It might give them hope.

What kind of wedding goes with today's new life styles? Does anything go? Ann Landers' completely new "The Bride's Guide" tells what's right for today's weddings. For a copy, send a dollar bill, plus a long, self- addressed, stamped envelope (16c postage) to Ann Landers, Box 3346, Chicago, Ill. 60654.

Sikeston DI's host annual convention

The Missouri State Circle of Daughters of Isabella will hold its annual state convention Friday, Saturday and Sunday at Ramada Inn. Sikeston, Charleston and Cape Girardeau circles will host the convention which 250 delegates and visitors are expected to attend.

The convention will open Friday evening with a dinner for the delegates of the 31 circles, followed by a reception and entertainment for the delegates and guests. The theme for the convention will be "Southern Hospitality".

The civic session for the three- day meeting will begin at 9 a.m. Saturday morning presided over by Mrs. Wilma Rogers, co-chairman of the convention. Charleston boy's choir will sing at the 5:30 p.m. mass. Bishop Sullivan, state chaplain, will be the principal speaker at the banquet later that evening in the convention room. Father Fortenberry, head of the Home Study Service for Missouri, will be the speaker at the Sunday morning breakfast. Installation of the newly elected officers will be conducted after the breakfast.

The Daughters of Isabella is an international organization with a membership of over 120,000 Catholic women. Missouri membership is over 4,000 in 31 circles.

Arrangements for the convention are under the direction of Mrs. Gerri Schlosser, 927 N. Ranney, and Mrs. Wilma Rogers, 425 Helen. Miss Margaret Dee is state regent. Regents for the hostess circles are Mrs. Mildred Graviett of Sikeston, Mrs. Charlotte Nenninger of Cape Girardeau and Mrs. Margaret Halter of Charleston.

Children should know nature's sights, sounds

By SHEREN K. HUNT
Area Home Economist

Nature! The world around us— the birds singing in the trees, a new flower blooming, or a bright green bug crawling across the sidewalk.

With the coming of pretty, bright days — days filled with sun and fun — maybe this is the time to spend a little time helping your child learn about nature and the world around him.

Nature and its exploration are very important to our children for it helps them to see, to hear, to be a part of the world in which they belong.

It doesn't take a complex lesson in science for you and your child to look at a new flower. But it does take your interest, your concern and your time away from an already busy schedule.

Learning begins at the start. It begins with what is at hand or what has just happened. Depending on the age and previous experience of your child, the learning can vary from a very elementary thing like smelling to the more complex idea which requires thinking and discerning by your child.

How can you begin your child's awareness of nature? Here are a few experiences which you might try with your child:

Find a quiet sitting place and just listen for 60 seconds — no moving — no talking. (Keep this time short. Most children have short interest spans.) Listen for the sounds — birds, insects, animal sounds, a bubbling brook.

Play 'I Spy' for colors. Some colors are easy to see. Look far away. Are all trees the same color? Are all flowers alike?

Be aware of what is around you. Can you see things alike? How are they different? Are the shrubs like the dogwood?

Find things to touch, for to touch is to learn. Touch brings ideas of what an object is like — it is sharp, smooth, thick, soft, cool, slick or dry? What does mud feel like wet? Dry?

Smell the smells. Oh, what a wonderful world we discover when we use our sense of smell. Each season has its own smell, and things smell different after a rain. Just think about pine, apple, lemon, daisy, corn and mint.

Encourage the curiosity of your child. Help him learn to ask questions. Just watch a frog, or see the ant hill. Be interested in the robin building a nest. See the sky at dawn or sunset. Notice the change in the season.

Nature can be an exciting new world to your child if you can take the time to help him explore what is around him.

Mrs. Cline reviews capitol artworks

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is another in a series of articles giving a wife's point of view of Jefferson City by Mrs. Kay Cline, wife of C. F. Cline, state representative from the 159th District).

This is the second of articles about the State Capitol and its works of art.

Missouri State House is a symbol of strength and majesty. The style of architecture is renaissance, surmounted by a dome of unusual beauty. The facade effect from all sides is beautiful.

If a close inspection is taken, it reveals a delicate and beautiful detailed work. All of the pediments have carved figures, but the pediment over the main entrance has an enthroned figure representing Missouri in the center. Her left arm rests on a shield bearing the coat of arms of the state.

On either side is a group of figures, representing the Spirit of Progress, Agriculture, Learning, Commerce, Art, Law and Order.

The capitol is constructed upon the exterior of Carthage (Missouri) stone, a pure, white, crystalline, limestone marble of hard and lasting texture.

Some of the interesting features are the beautiful fluted columns that surmount its north and south porticos, and its eastern and western fronts. The columns are both free and engaged, giving the appearance of a Grecian temple. The architect has devoted much time to the study of this feature.

Directly behind and above the statue of Jefferson are the massive columns of the south portico supporting the state motto (written in Latin), meaning, The Welfare of the People Shall Be the Supreme Law.

The steps of the main entrance on which the statue of Jefferson stands are 120 feet in the greatest length. The large space under the wide stairway which leads up to the state entrance to the capitol had only an earthen floor in its origin. Water leaking through the joints in the steps threatened the stairway by making the earth damp.

Under the direction of a commission, this space was cleaned out and a granitoid floor was laid. The joints in the steps were caulked. A valuable storage room was secured for the use of the departments housed in the capitol.

The capitol is surrounded by a beautiful concrete terrace 12 feet wide, extending almost entirely around the building. The wide open stretch of concrete ground is enclosed with a handsome row of balusters topped by a rail, and is finely lighted. The walls of the terrace are bush-hammered in imitation of stone.

The building stands upon 285 concrete piers of varying sizes, which extend to solid rock at depths ranging from 20 to 50 feet deep. It is 437 feet long and 200 feet wide in the wings and 300 feet through the center. It is 88 feet from the floor of the basement to the top of the exterior wall, 262 feet from the basement floor and 400 feet from the Missouri River level to the top of the dome.

It covers approximately three acres and has almost 500,000 feet of floor space. The framework is of steel, brick and marble. It has four stories besides the basement. There are entrances to the basement from three sides, to the first floor from four sides, and to the second floor from two sides.

The diameter of the dome at its greatest dimension is 104 feet. There are 32 columns around the drum of the dome, three feet in diameter and 24 feet high. The height of the shell of the dome and lantern is 90 feet and the diameter of the shell is 78 feet. There are 16 highly carved panels around the drum of the dome, 5 feet high and 9 feet wide.

There are 300 feet of sculptural frieze work, eight and nine feet high in the front and rear porticos. There are 200 carved medallions on the rear and front porticos. The ceilings of the portico and the dome are highly decorated in ornamental plaster.

There are 134 columns in the entire building. They are surmounted by Corinthian capitals 7 feet 2 inches wide by 5 feet 3 inches high. There are 32 engaged columns, four feet high, and 20 free- standing columns in the wings. One fourth of all the stone in the structure is in columns.

NEW CHILPREN'S TV PROGRAM IS BICULTURAL

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — English and Spanish children in this country will get to know each other better if a new educational television program achieves its goals, according to the sponsors of the project.

Beginning this fall, a bilingual-bicultural Spanish-English television program for children from preschool through the primary grades will be telecast daily on a national basis. The 130-program series, as yet untitled, will be funded by the United States Office of Education.

The program's target audience includes millions of young American children. The purpose is not simply to teach English to Spanish-oriented children.

"We want English-speaking children to learn or become familiar with the Spanish language, culture, customs and heritage, too. Through this method Spanish-oriented and Anglo children can learn about, appreciate and understand other cultures and each other," said Dr. Rene Gardenas, executive director of Bilingual Children's Television Inc., which is producing.

Hayti Heights eatablishes goals and objectives

HAYTI HEIGHTS — Mayor David Humes and the City Council have developed a fact sheet on the Heights, including goals and objectives of the city.

The introduction states that the city is a low- income black community, population 1,231, with many problems. Eighty per cent of the residents receive some form of welfare; 50 per cent of the houses are grossly substandard with inadequate or no plumbing.

It also says there are no public water and sanitary sewer facilities and inadequate storm sewers cause health hazards. Another problem is a lack of adequate jobs for employable residents.

The goal of Hayti Heights, according to the fact sheet, is for the city to become a self-sustaining community.

Short range objectives of the city include:

A. Land use plan or comprehensive plan -- 1. Purpose: step toward water and sewer and step toward attracting business and industry, 2. Request: help with financing the 25 per cent matching for a Department of Housing and Urban Development planning grant or possibly even total cost.

B. Preliminary engineering report -- 1. Purpose: necessary step towards water and sewers 2. Request: help with total financing.

C. Equipment for fire truck -- 1. Purpose: lower cost of fire protection and increase service, 2. Request: cost of equipping truck uninhabitable.

D. General clean-up - removal of brush and dilapidated houses -- 1. Purpose: clear land for future development, develop community pride, provide jobs and income, especially summer jobs for youth, 2. Request: cost of equipment and wages, amount not yet approximated.

E. Community center sketch plan -- 1. Purpose: increase community participation in planning, complete initial steps toward community center, 2. Request: outside technical assistance if necessary, local resources may be adequate.

F. Inventory of resources -- 1. Purpose: to aid in future planning and "selling" of area to business and industry, 2. Request: outside technical assistance if necessary, local resources may be adequate.

G. Recreation program -- 1. Purpose: to aid development of youth, provide jobs and income, enhance community attitude, 2. Request: some equipment, wages for supervisors.

H. City Administrator -- 1. Purpose: set up appropriate accounting system, make best use of available resources, 2. Request: salary.

Long range objectives (1-5 years).

A. Water and sewer final design and construction -- 1. Purpose: enable further physical development, attract business and industry, 2. Request: help to finance matching share for federal grants and/or loans, political pressure to shorten application time.

B. Final design and construction of community center -- 1. Purpose: foster greater sense of community and spirit of cooperation, provde base for community efforts, 2. Request: technical assistance and financing of site and building costs.

C. Paved streets 1. Purpose: better living conditions, attract business and industry, 2. Request: partial financing if necessary.

D. Community owned basic stores and services including cooperative grocery store, laundramat, filling station, and maybe clothing store -- 1. Purpose: keep income in community, give residents more for their money, 2. Request: help with initial financing.

E. Development of industrial park -- 1. Purpose: Attract industries to provide jobs and tax base, 2. Request: aid in financing.

F. Establish industries -- 1. Purpose: provide jobs to hold younger people and increase community income, 2. Request: "Sell" industries on Hayti Heights.

G. Housing projects -- 1. Purpose: improve living condition for residents, attract larger work force 2. Request: financial backing.

Ongoing community supported projects include the Help Club, Block Club and Hayti Heights Community Development Corporation.

Jerry Ray, 25, Anniston, bruised right knee on iron railing; Carroll Hurley, 5, Sikeston, punctured and bruised scalp in fall off sliding board; Steve Barnett, 16, Matthews, received electrical burn to left ring finger; Robert Malin, 21, Maryland Heights, scratched and punctured right knee in motorcycle accident; and Phillip Wood, 1, Anniston, bitten by dog, cut face.

Printing has been illegal

JEFFERSON CITY— Millions of dollars of printing for the legislature apparently has been done illegally, according to an attorney general's opinion issued Monday.

The St. Louis Globe-Democrat disclosed last month that most of the legislative printing has been done without public bids, although state law appeared to require it.

A series of articles reported that the chairman of a House committee had agreed with a small- town printing firm, operated by a friend, to provide a two- year supply of stationary and envelopes for the 163 state representatives.

The firm, Scott- Mo. Publishing Co. in Chaffee, reportedly is too small to handle the large order. It paid two other firms to furnsh the printing. At least three firms would be able to profit from the state that way.

In addition, the House and Senate for years have hired a St. Louis firm, Von Hoffman Press, Inc., to print copies of legislative bills and journals of daily proceedings. Again, no public bids have been taken, at least in recent years.

The Von Hoffman work, done at its Jefferson City plant, amounts to about $250,000 a year, the House stationery was estimated to cost about $30,000 for two years.

The Senate has for two years required bids from firms to supply its stationery, according to Sen. Albert M. Spradling Jr. Cape Girardeau Democrat. He said the Senate had saved 28 per cent from its earlier cost by requiring bids.

Spradling is chairman of the Senate Accounts Committee.

Rep. Fred DeField, Charleston Democrat, is chairman of the House Accounts Committee, which is in charge of House and Senate spending. DeField said he hired the Chaffee firm.

When told of the official opinion by Attorney General John C. Danforth, Senate president pro tem William Cason, Clinton Democrat, said he is "certainly willing" to offer the large printing volume for bids.

After the situation was revealed, House Speaker Richard J. Rabbitt, St. Louis Democrat, said he would begin to require bids if the attorney general said the law requires it.

Monday's legal opinion said all legislative printing must be purchased by the purchasing agent in the State Office of Administration. Law requires all government printing to be handled through that office on the basis of the best competitive bid.

Rep. Ray S. James, Kansas City Republican, had requested the opinion from Danforth. "I'm a little surprised no one caught this before," James said Monday of the apparently illegal practice that had been used for years.

DeField and Spradling had said the printing law did not apply to the House and Senate because another section of law authorizes the legislature to control the spending of its contingent fund.

Also, they and other lawmakers said there was apparently no need to take bids for the costly printing of legislative bills and journals because Von Hoffman is the only firm that can handle the printing work on an overnight basis as the General Assembly requires.

They said that had been determined some years ago, but they did not cite any effort to determine if that situation still is in effect or if a better price for the state might be obtained if public bids were required.

James pointed out that the opinion has the potential of saving taxpayers money. "I presume the House will comply."

The opinion was written by Assistant Attorney General Walter W. Nowotny Jr. It said "the printing of all stationary, bills, journals and other printing of the legislature for any of its creatures such as legislative joint committees, interim committees or commissions must be purchased" under provisions of the state printing law.

Cason said he questions the validity of the opinion because Danforth's office has made mistakes in the past. But he added that he expects to name Sen. Richard Webster, Carthage Republican, to investigate printing requirements.

"If somebody can do it cheaper, that's fine— we want to save all the money we can," Cason said.

Coleman case hearing set

CARUTHERSVILLE— A preliminary hearing of the first-degree robbery and murder charges filed against Howard Coleman, 19, of Tarpon Springs, Fla., a former Blytheville, Ark., resident, has been set for May 21, according to magistrate court records here.

Coleman is accused of participating in the April 5 robbery of the Holland Raceway Service Station, in which 18- year- old Robert Wayne Fisk of Steele was shot to death.

Coleman, represented by attorney John Fowlkes, is being held in the Pemiscot County Jail at Caruthersville in lieu of $50,000 bond.

Separate, but identical charges have been filed against two former Blytheville men, Eddie Lee Orr, 21, and Leon Orr, 19.

The Orr brothers, along with Coleman's older brother, Charles Edward Coleman, 22, were arrested by police last month in connection with the robbery of a St. Genevieve service station, in which a customer was slain.

The Orr brothers and Charles Coleman also have been charged with first- degree murder in connection with the March 31 shooting death of Mrs. Hazel Elmore, the wife of an Osceola, Ark., service station owner.

House passes bill to make Truman's birthday state holiday

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP)— The Missouri House passed and sent to the governor today a bill to make May 8, the late Harry S. Truman's birthday, a state holiday in Missouri.

His birthdate would replace April 13, Jefferson's birthday, on the state holiday list. The bill also changes Veterans Day back to Nov. 11, Armistice day, from the fourth Monday in October.

An amendment in the Senate said the following Monday, if May 8 falls on a Saturday or a Sunday, could not be considered a state holiday. That would prevent a three- day weekend for state workers unless May 8 falls on a Friday.

The bill, sponsored by Rep. Phillip Scaglia, D—Kansas City, passed 131- 15. It was the fourth bill sent to the governor in the 5- month-old session.

The bill would become effective next year.

In Monday night's committee action, a House member said any bill to reinstate the death penalty in Missouri will probably have to be a compromise worked out by a joint Senate- House committee.

Rep. Bob Griffin, D-Cameron, told the Senate Judiciary Committee Monday night that the House Judiciary Committee last week approved a substitute for the version approved earlier by the Senate.

Griffin was appearing before the Senate Judiciary Committee to testify on the version passed by the House several weeks ago. Discussion between Griffin and the senators soon switched to the best way of getting some death penalty bill passed.

Griffin said the method House members were expecting was a conference committee.

One senator suggested the committee hold the House version and wait until the substitute for the Senate version is approved, and then appoint a joint committee to work out the differences.

Griffin said later the House committee substitute was "in effect the House bill," and that a conference committee could work out differences more quickly.

The House version also has an emergency clause to put the bill into effect immediately after it is signed by the governor.

Sen. Maurice Schechter, D-Creve Coeur, said the Senate had already spent seven days of floor action working out their version, and that more debate would be "wasting time."

He also recommended a conference committee.

The House version contains all the categories of murder which would bring a mandatory death penalty included in the Senate bill.

It also proscribes capital punishment for some not included in the Senate bill, such as death for persons convicted of hijacking airplanes.

Both measures give the death penalty to persons convicted of murder during rape, robbery, burglary, arson and kidnaping.

Earlier the House passed and sent to the Senate several bills, including one to give state aid to veterans attending college.

The bill would pay one third the cost of tuition or incidental fees. Yearly cost to the state is estimated at $2.4 million.

The House also defeated two bills called "special interest" bills by their opponents.

One would have required all real estate appraisers to be licensed by the state, which opponents said would be restricting competition among real estate appraisers.

The bill lost on a tie, 76-76 vote, because it failed to get a constitutional majority of 82.

The other bill, defeated 78-72, also because it failed to get 82 votes, would have required retailers to buy their beer only from licensed wholesalers.

Opponents of the bill said it meant higher prices for consumers.

The bill had been defeated earlier on first round approval. However, the vote was reconsidered, and it had been given tentative approval.

The senate debated, but took no action, on a version of a nofault automobile insurance bill, drawn up by the Missouri Bar Association.

Sen. Truman E. Wilson, D-St. Joseph, said he would introduce a substitute bill, but needed time to have copies made.

Walters accuses aides of seeking CIA help in coverup

WASHINGTON (AP) — The No. 2 man in the Central Intelligence Agency reportedly has accused former White House aides H.R. Haldeman, John D. Ehrlichman and John W. Dean III of trying to enlist CIA help in a Watergate coverup.

CIA Deputy Director Vernon A. Walters testified in secret Monday before the Senate Armed Services Committee. Later Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., said Walters had testified that Haldeman, Ehrlichman and Dean were "heavily involved" in efforts to misuse the CIA. Another source said one effort had been a Watergate coverup.

The account dovetails with statements by former acting FBI chief L. Patrick Gray III. He testified before Senate Watergate investigators last week, and The Associated Press has obtained an official written digest of his remarks.

Gray said Walters got the FBI to postpone interviews with two Watergate witnesses last year on grounds the CIA had "some interest" in them.

Walters later conceded under pressure that the CIA actually had no interest whatsoever in the two, Gray said, but not before Ehrlichman personally ordered Gray to cancel a meeting set up to straighten out the matter between the CIA and FBI.

Gray said he and Walters agreed this "confusion" was "not normal," and the two agreed that Gray should tell President Nixon.

Gray talked to Nixon by telephone that same day, July 6, blamed the matter on "either carelessness or indifference" by White House aides, and warned Nixon that "this could be injurious to the agencies and could wound the President."

The witnesses are two men whose names appeared on checks that passed through the Nixon campaign headquarters and landed in the Miami bank account of Bernard L. Barker, one of the convicted Watergate conspirators.

The witnesses are Mexican lawyer Manuel Ogarrio Daguerre and Minneapolis attorney Kenneth H. Dahlberg. The checks eventually furnished a link between the wiretappers and the Nixon re-election committee.

The fresh reports of White House misuse of the CIA came after a day of rapid-fire developments Monday.

Missing FBI records of wiretaps on 13 government officials and four newsmen were found in Ehrlichman's White House safe, acting FBI Director William Ruckelshaus announced. Ehrlichman said he hadn't known in detail what the documents contained.

Ruckelshaus said the taps had been ordered in 1969 after presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger told the late FBI director J. Edgar Hoover he was "extremely concerned" about news leaks affecting foreign policy.

One of the taps picked up conversations of Daniel Ellsberg and figured in last week's dismissal of charges against him in the Pentagon papers trial.

Dean, meanwhile, turned over a batch of classified documents to federal court officials after Chief U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica agreed to accept custody.

Dean had stashed the documents in a Virginia safe-deposit box, saying he was afraid someone might destroy them. He said they relate to the Watergate case, but otherwise gave no indication of what the documents say.

Haldeman was called by the Watergate grand jury for a five-hour repeat appearance and Ehrlichman testified briefly. On Capitol Hill, convicted Watergate conspirator E. Howard Hunt was interviewed for three hours by Senate investigators.

The Senate Watergate committee continued gearing up for the start of public hearings, which begin Thursday.

The Senate Judiciary Committee went into its third day of hearings on the nomination of Defense Secretary Elliot L. Richardson to be attorney general. Richardson said he has narrowed his choice for a special Watergate prosecutor to four men: U.S. District Court Judge Harold R. Tyler of New York, former New York state Judge David Peck, Colorado State Supreme Court Judge William Erickson and former Deputy U.S. Atty. Gen. Warren Christopher of Los Angeles.

Automobile fire at Drury Inn

Fire gutted the interior of an automobile owned by Tony Clodfelter, 905 Allen Blvd., about 5:30 a.m. today on the parking lot of the Drury Inn Motel on Highway 62 East.

Jim Roth, Miner fire chief, extinguished the blaze with a fire extinguisher. Sikeston Fire Department, which had been called to the scene, assisted. Roth said the cause of the fire was not known.

3 appear in city court

CHARLESTON — Three persons appeared in City Court Monday.

Dorris E. Monroe of Charleston was fined $28 on a charge of public intoxication; Bobby Gene Johnson, 28, of Charleston, drunk and disorderly conduct, was fined $18; and Thomas A. Homblen of East Prairie, peace disturbance, was fined $25.

Vandals strike

A plastic lining in a swimming pool owned by John Young, 523 Malcolm, was ripped by vandals about 10:45 p.m. Sunday, according to police.

A spade was used to cut a six foot gash in the seven- foot pool. The pool was empty at the time of the vandalism, police said.

Burke arrested

Police today announced the arrest of James Edmund Burke of Charleston Route Three for driving while intoxicated, Augustus Townes Jr. of Hayti for peace disturbance and David Michael Watkins, 619 Dorothy for public intoxication.

Hubcaps stolen at paint shop

Hubcaps valued at $140 were reported stolen from a truck owned by Ralph Stage of Vanduser, according to police.

Police said Stage had parked his truck at the Sikeston High School paint shop four weeks ago. When he returned to pick it up, the hubcaps were gone.

Women injured in accident

POPLAR BLUFF — A Poplar Bluff woman suffered minor injuries at 5:10 a.m. today when she ran her car off the road and struck a ditch embankment three miles east of Poplar Bluff on Highway 60.

Marie Livesay, 55, received bruises and was taken to Lucy Lee Hospital in Poplar Bluff.

A total of 311,563 people took the public education courses offered by the U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary in 1972.

W.A. Dolan to be chief of staff

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri Highway Patrol today announced a series of promotions, including a new assistant superintendent and new chief of staff.

Col. Sam Smith, patrol superintendent, said Maj. Walter Snyder will be promoted to lieutenant colonel and will become assistant superintendent, replacing Lt. Col. V. E. Maxey, who is retiring.

Snyder, a native of Excelsior Springs, has been with the patrol since 1939 and has been chief of staff since January 1971.

Snyder's replacement as chief of staff will be W. A. Dolan, who will be promoted from captain to major.

He will be transferred from the Kirkwood troop-to general headquarters at Jefferson City.

A native of Wardell, Mo., Dolan has been with the patrol since 1946.

The new commander at the Kirkwood troop will be A. F. Closson, who will be promoted from lieutenenat to captain.

Closson, in the patrol since 1946, is from Keytesville.

Benefits available to flood homeless

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri Division of Employment Security received $249,000 Monday from the U.S. Office of Emergency Preparedness to provide unemployment benefits for persons left homeless by flooding.

Joseph E. Dietrich, assistant director of unemployment security, said 12,000 persons living up and down the Mississippi have applied for unemployment benefits as a result of flooding.

The division expects to receive another $2 million in the next week or so, but that still may not take care of all 12,000 claims, he said.

The division must determine exactly how much income was lost to individuals because of flooding.

$98,000 grant approved for SeMo U criminal law program

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Frank Mack of Ironton, chairman of Region 8, and William Inman of Caruthersville, chairman of Region 6, have announced approval of a grant to Southeast Missouri State University from the Law Enforcement Councils of Regions 6 and 8, totaling $98,000 for support of an Institute of Criminal Justice.

The Institute, under the direction of Dr. A. R. Meyer, dean of instruction at the University, continues the Regional Crime Laboratory project and the Law Enforcement Education Program, both funded by the law councils. However, this new grant places their administration for the first time under one office. This combined project will enable the crime laboratory and the law enforcement education to integrate where possible, which will result in upgrading law enforcement in Southeast Missouri.

The crime laboratory project, under the direction of Dr. R. C. Briner, received $9,000 of local support money from 14 counties and 15 cities from Southeast Missouri to provide the necessary match of federal money required for proposals of this type. The law councils and the university were extremely pleased with this board support for the crime laboratory and interpret it as a vote of confidence for the regional laboratory concept, according to Vernon Fee of Cape Girardeau and Tom Gilmore of Sikeston, co-chairmen of the Crime Lab Committee.

The education portion of the project will be directed by Dr. George Ketcham, chairman of the division of history and social science. In addition to the programs leading to the Associate of Arts and Bachelor of Science Degrees in law enforcement, a program in forensic science is currently being considered by the university.

The Executive Director of the two law councils, Bob Henzi of Malden in the Region 6 Council, Ron Bockenkamp of Bonne Terre in the Region 8 Council, John Cavanagh, fiscal officer of the Region 8 office, and Dr. D. H. Fromesdorf, chairman of the university's science division, assisted with the proposal preparation.

What's the Law?

The case of the frightened property owner

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Myron lived in a world of fear. In fact, the full extent of his courage was to admit that he had none. Everything frightened him. Noises in the middle of the night, his own shadow creeping up on him and, most of all, black cats. Consequently, picture his chagrin when he came home from work one afternoon to find that a mausoleum was being built only an owl's hoot away on the property directly adjacent to his own.

With his knees still knocking, Myron raced to court the next morning and, insisting that the mausoleum was a nuisance, demanded an order directing its immediate removal.

"While I don't discriminate against who lives next to me," he told the judge, "when it comes to a ghost, it's another matter. I just don't want one for a neighbor. When there's a rapping on my door, I'd like to be able to see who it is, and if I can't, it's going to scare the life out of me. Certainly, no one has to put up with that kind of thing."

"Mausoleums have to be built somewhere," was the answer. "Since there's no law that says that one can't be built on the property next to Myron's property, his lack of courage is no grounds to prohibit its erection. If Myron hears any rapping on his door, he's just going to have to hope for the best."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you alay Myron's fears and order the removal of the mausoleum?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that to provide for the repose of the dead is as lawful as to provide for the comfort of the living. While the presence of a mausoleum may cause some unpleasant thoughts, concluded the judge, a mausoleum, like a cemetery, is not a "nuisance" unless it is managed in such a manner as to endanger the comfort and health of those living nearby.

GET INTO ACTION.

ACTION is a growing movement of volunteers of all ages and skills who want to help people help themselves. In Venezuela, in Appalachia, in Ethiopia, in South Chicago. Anyplace in the world where people need help. ACTION is the Peace Corps; VISTA; RSVP (Retired Senior Volunteer Program); SCORE (Service Corps of Retired Executives); ACE (Active Corps of Executives); The Foster Grandparent Program; UYA (University Year for ACTION). So if you want to do something for somebody, don't crawl under a rock. Get into ACTION.

2 accidents result in 1 injury

Two accidents occurred within 30 minutes of each other this morning, one which sent an 18- year- old girl to the hospital for x- rays and the other which involved the police department's safety officer.

Mona Carol Thompson of 513 Prosperity, was taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital for x- rays after the automobile she was driving ran into the rear of a car belonging to Earnest E. Goins, 56, of 1514 Matthews. The x- rays revealed no broken bones.

Police said the Goins vehicle was stopped in traffic to make a turn from the westbound lane of W. Malone Ave. onto Delmar when he was struck in the rear by the Thompson car.

The Thompson woman was arrested for careless and imprudent driving, according to police.

About 7:30 a.m. an automobile driven by police safety officer Richard Couch 25, of 312 Benton, struck the rear of a car driven by Leroy Stephen Bess, 26, of 328 Virginia, while Couch was avoiding a child who was crossing the street.

Police said Couch was intent on avoiding the child as he made a left turn onto Warner Street from Benton and struck the Bess car in the rear end.

No arrests were made.

first orbit that a flight control official called it a "superbird."

But trouble began even before the Skylab reached orbit.

Just 63 seconds after liftoff, a paper- thin aluminum overcoat designed to protect the lab from micrometeorite hits apparently was ripped from the side of the spacecraft, Schneider reported. This failure apparently damaged two wing- like solar panels that were to have extended from the sides of the spaceship to convert the sun's rays to electrical power.

The two 30- foot panels deployed only partially and are useless. Efforts to dislodge them by radio command failed.

The mishap with the shield occurred 40,000 feet up while the 33- story- tall Saturn 5 was subjected to maximum pressure from high altitude wind shears.

Suit motions filed

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The legislature should have tried to override Gov. Christopher S. Bond's appropriations vetoes before filing suit against him, the attorney general's office said Monday in filing motions with the Missouri Supreme Court.

Democratic leaders in the House and Senate and the appropriations chairmen have sued Bond for striking words out of a $6.8 million appropriations measure. They contend that such action nullifies the intent of the legislature.

Richard Houdek of the attorney general's office, in his answer to motions filed by the legislators, said the state Supreme Court lacks jurisdiction to rule on another branch of government; that such a question should be settled by a higher court.

His brief pointed out that the legislators have not exhausted all remedies in that they did not attempt to override the word vetoes.

Houdek contended the state Constitution does not limit Bond's veto powers to monetary amounts in appropriations bills, and said there is historical precedent for word vetoes.

The legislators objected to Bond's striking of "west side" from a $1.1 million measure for capitol renovation. Houdek filed with the court a letter from the appropriations chairmen stating that $96,000 would be used for legislative office space and hearing rooms.

The bill, as presented to the governor, did not contain the stipulation that $96,000 would be spent for office space and Bond said he feared that money could not be legally spent for office space as long as the words "west side" were in the bill.

Ashcroft proposes audit of tax returns

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — State Auditor John D. Ashcroft said today his office should be allowed to audit state tax returns "to determine the extent of sales tax evasion."

Ashcroft said "as much as $100 million in sales taxes were stolen in recent years by tax evaders."

"Only since 1970 has the state auditor been denied access to the returns to the Department of Revenue," he said, noting that the Missouri Constitution gives the auditor authority to post-audit all state agencies.

"The citizens of Missouri have a right to know if tax breaks are being given to privileged persons, and if a fair system of tax collection exists. An audit of the Department of Revenue, unrestricted insscope, can provide this information," Ashcroft said.

The auditor said he wants access to returns on the sales tax, individual income tax and intangible tax.

Davidson is elected road commissioner

BENTON— James E. Davidson of Scott City was selected at Monday's County Court meeting as the new Illmo- Scott City special road district commissioner to fill the unexpired term of Dr. B.F. Holly of Illmo, who resigned.

Davidson will serve the remainder of the term which expires in February 1974.

The court accepted a low bid of $1,685 from D&D Electric Co. of Dexter for installation of a new lighting system in the Circuit Court room.

Other bids submitted to the court include Burden-McClung Electric Service of Sikeston for $2,030 and Hart's Electric of Benton for $2,440.

Lights to be added to the courtroom include four overhead lights suspended by a fixture chain to a height of 12 feet above the floor and one light over the judge's bench and suspended by a fixture chain to a height of 12 feet.

The court accepted the low bid for carpeting several county offices submitted by Modern Floor Covering of Sikeston for $3,477.50.

Offices to be carpeted include the circuit clerk, Probate court, recorder of deeds, assessor, county clerk and county collector..

Williams held

KIRKWOOD— Bill Williams, approximately 35 years old, is being held at Troop C highway patrol headquarters in Kirkwood for investigation of the abduction of an Arkansas woman at 11:45 p.m. Monday from a truck stop near Matthews.

According to the highway patrol, Williams picked up Jimmy and Phyllis Dean Shannon of Hot Springs, Ark., in the truck he was driving near Little Rock. The three traveled to Missouri and stopped at Scotty's Truck Stop on Interstate 55 near Matthews. Williams told Shannon to go inside for cigarettes and left with Mrs. Shannon asleep in the sleeper cab.

The patrol said Williams was apprehended at 4:30 a.m. today and Mrs. Shannon is en route back to Arkansas.

Supreme Court says Socony can't be ejected at Cape

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri Supreme Court has upheld a lower court decision saying the Socony Mobil Oil Co., Inc., cannot be ejected from three tracts of land in Cape Girardeau.

The ruling was issued Monday.

The First National Bank of Cape Girardeau was denied its requests in circuit court for back rent since 1954, $200,000 in damages and removal of Mobile from the land. The high court upheld the lower court.

The case involves the estate of Mary H. G. Houck, who died in 1944.

Her daughter, Rebecca Frissell, leased one tract to mobil for 50 years in 1953. A second tract was inherited by a son, Giboney Houck, who leased it to Mobile in 1954 for 50 years.

The third tract was leased to Aquamsi Land Co., which in turn leased it to Mobil.

The bank acquired title to the second tract at a foreclosure sale when Giboney Houck died in 1960. Mrs. Frissell had died in 1954.

The bank contended the second tract lease was nullified because of Giboney Houck's death and that Giboney Houck had rightlly inherited the other two tracts when Mrs. Frissell died.

The lower court ruled that the leases were valid.

One tract is occupied by storage tanks. The second tract contains a terminal and pumping facility on the Mississippi River. The third has an underground pipeline.

Scott estimated that, for the Bootheel, this year's corn crop may not be over 10 per cent of the average crop. He did not compare it to last year, because of a small crop in 1972.

Statewide, the corn crop was only five per cent planted at the end of last week, lagging behind last year when planting has reached the halfway mark.

Not much wheat was planted this year, and what was planted has been damaged by water and disease. "The wheat crop doesn't look as healthy as it should," Scott said.

Scott warned that wheat growers will have to watch for army worms which get into the small grain about this time of year.

The Crop and Livestock Reporting Service reports that 28 per cent of the state's wheat crop is headed, down from last year's figure of 53 per cent at this time.

Scott reported that farmers in Butler and Stoddard counties will plant grain sorghum this year. They use it in rotation with soybeans and have found it to be a good crop for that area. The crop should be going in now, but there is more leeway for planting it. Statewide, grain sorghum planting is one per cent complete, compared with 10 per cent a year ago.

Scott warned that there may be more insect problems with all crops this year because they were planted later in the year.

The Crop and Livestock Reporting Service says plowing advanced three points last week to 17 per cent completion. This is far behind 1972 when plowing was virtually finished by this date.

Food price rise is plotted to rise slowly till year's end. That means we're supposed to get used to being hungrier a little at a time?

Stokes leads assault

There was no magic in the arm of Randy Gardener Monday afternoon, but there was in the bat of Kenny Stokes. The sophomore belted out four straight hits and led the revenge- minded SHS Bulldogs to their fourth straight triumph of the season defeating the unbeaten Hayti Indians, 6-4. In their last meeting, Gardener and Hayti bested Stokes and his untried teammates in Sikeston's first game, 9-0, as the mustachioed righthander limited Sikeston to just three hits. This time he was pounded for 10 safeties in five innings by the aroused Bulldog batters.

Winning the game for Sikeston, his third in three decisions, was junior curveball artist Richard Blankenship. The curve tossed by the young righthander set the Indians on their ears, after Stokes had hurled the first three innings. The Hayti batters, bailing out on every pitch and taking sickly cuts, reached Blankenship for just two hits -- one solid-- in four innings of relief.

The first inning of the contest gave a hint of things to come. Danny White reached first for Hayti with one out, but Gardener fanned and Maxie grounded out to strand him. The first two, Colwick and Stokes, reached for Sikeston, But, Leible grounded to White at short and Gardener whiffed Taylor and Saulter to end the first frame threat.

Two runners reached for Hayti in the second on a walk and an error, but Stokes fanned the final two to keep the game scoreless. Gardener started his own trouble in the bottom of the second. The senior pitcher was late covering first on an infield grounder off the bat of Bill Schatzley and then dropped a good throw. After that, he walked Rick Dyer and was hit on the foot by a line driver off the bat of Mitch Walker, Walker reaching first. While in considerable pain, he walked Greg Colwick to fill the sacks. Then, John Lieble stroked a two run single to left.

Despite the disrespect shown their star hurler, the Indians were not giving up. Morgan reached base on an error, leading off. White singled him to third. From there he scored on a wild pitch, White moving to second. Gardener helped his own cause with a run- scoring single and Harry Grant put Hayti ahead, two outs later, with an infield grounder which scored Gardener. The Indians led 3-2.

Their lead lasted less than an inning as the Bulldogs counted twice in the bottom of the frame. Donnie Taylor, moved up to the cleanup slot, responded with his fourth double in four games, then scored an out later on Shatzley's single to right. Eisenbach was hit by a pitch and Walker singled Shatzley home for a narrow 4-3 lead.

Richard Blankenship entered the game for Sikeston in the fourth and pitched the rest of the way very effectively, boosted by the Indians' inability to touch his sweeping curveball. The Bulldogs added single runs in the fourth and sixth innings, both driven in by John Leible. Two hits in the game raised Leible's batting mark to .424 and Stoke's four for four performance elevated his average 114 points, from .286 to .400.

The win raised the Sikeston won- lost record to 7-3. The only team to defeat them that they haven't defeated is Jackson and they will not be met again this year. The Bulldogs will try to play at least one more game before calling it quits -- that game to be some time this week.

Hawks win 13th

ORAN — The Kelly Hawks made it 13 wins in 15 games this season when coach Jim Thornsberry's District champions downed the Oran Eagles 10-0 here Monday afternoon in a Scott - Mississippi county baseball game.

Kenny Urhahn fired a two-hitter at the Eagles in posting the shutout. Urhahn also contributed to the win with two hits in three trips to the plate. Jeff Jackson had three hits and two runs-batted-in.

Keith Campbell was the starting and losing pitcher for the Eagles and Kelly jumped on him and his error pleagued mates in the top of the first inning, scoring two runs. Kelly kept the pressure on as they crossed the plate at least once in each of the five innings. Kelly added two runs in the third, three in the fourth and two in the fifth. The game was called after the bottom of the fifth frame was completed.

The Hawks racked Campbell for 11 base hits with Bob Jackson's double being the only extra base hit of the game.

Kelly plays Scott Central a doubleheader Tuesday afternoon before traveling to Van Buren to take on Scott City in the Regional tournament Friday afternoon.

Can your cigarette pass these 5 simple tests?

If you've ever had second thoughts about the brand of cigarette you smoke, here's a quick way to find out if it really delivers what you want.

These five simple tests will tell you a lot about quality, freshness, and taste.

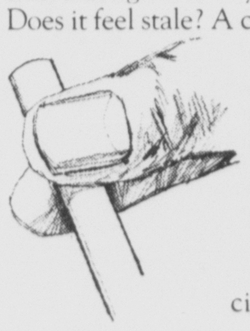
Test #1 Sniff It

Take a whiff of the tobacco. Does it smell rich and fresh and appealing? If your cigarette is Winston, you'll recognize the aroma of costly Vintage Leaf Tobaccos. Winston chooses the most nearly perfect leaves money can buy. Then we age these rare tobaccos in wooden casks. We do it for the same reason you'd age a fine wine. Aging makes our tobaccos mellow and brings out that extra dimension of natural goodness.

Test #2 Feel It

Roll the cigarette in your hand. Pinch it slightly. Does it feel stale? A cigarette that's been waiting in a warehouse, or on a shelf, can lose some of its freshness. And some of its taste. But, because Winston sells so fast, every pack comes to you fresh. The fact is, on any given day, Winston is likely to be the freshest cigarette your money can buy.

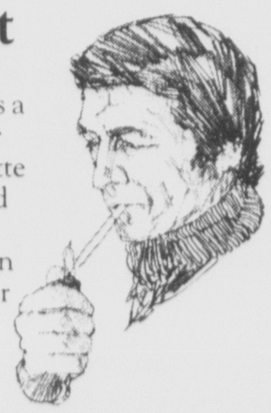


Test #3 Take a puff... before lighting

Take a puff — without lighting it. That's a good way to learn about the tobacco and the filter. If you can taste the tobaccos without lighting up, you know there's richness up front. And that the filter doesn't get in the way of the taste. Winston's exclusive Filter-Blend, a top-secret blend of different tobaccos, works with Winston's modern white filter to deliver satisfying taste in every puff.

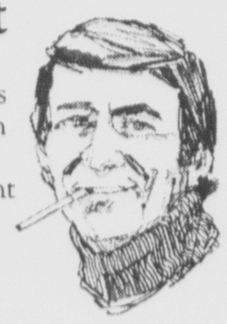
Test #4 Light It

Does it burn evenly? Here's a critical test of the way your cigarette is made. A cigarette rolled fresh, packed full and made with care will burn evenly, draw easily. Winston always does. How does your brand shape up?



Test #5 Smoke It

What could be simpler? That's the real test of a cigarette. Can it deliver good taste and real satisfaction every time you light up? Winston can. Ask a Winston smoker. Any time. He'll tell you in four simple words: How good it is.



Ask a Winston smoker. He'll tell you

HOW GOOD IT IS.

Hulman rebuilds Indy

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The Indianapolis 500-mile auto race will run the 57th time May 28 with another colorful show drawing more than 250,000 persons and heard and seen by millions more around the world.

But it hasn't always been so.

In 1945, when Anton "Tony" Hulman of Terre Haute, Ind., bought the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, it was in disrepair. Interest in the Memorial Day classic had diminished after the track was closed four years during World War II. — The Speedway, which was built in 1909 as a proving ground for automobiles, is now known in some racing circles as "the house that Tony rebuilt."

The 2½-mile asphalt track is the focal point of the Speedway on the city's far west side, but it isn't the only attraction of the 539-acre property.

Hulman has replaced the ancient wooden grandstand that nearly circled the track with steel and concrete grandstands. There is now an estimated seating capacity of 235,000 and room for an additional 100,000 persons in the track infield.

Hulman has supervised construction of a more-than-100room motel, a 27-hole golf course with nine holes in the infield and an office-museum building as well as press and hospitality quarters.

Speedway officials never announced attendance figures, but an estimated 60,000 persons watched the 500 in 1946 and prize money totaled $75,000 after a prewar high of $96,250.

Hulman, whose great wealth comes from varied business and real estate interests, has made the Indy race the richest in the world of auto racing.

For the third straight year prize money this year will total more than $1 million.

His newest improvement at the Speedway is an addition to the motel to house VIP suites which rent for $10,000 a year on the second floor and $20,000 for the third-floor. There are six suites on each floor. The rooms, which overlook the track, were all rented long before the addition was completed, most of them by large companies involved in racing.

For race day, tickets for reserved seats sell for from $10 to $40, and it costs $5 a person to watch the race from the infield in the midst of one of the world's largest picnics.

Gasoline Alley, the strip of concrete that connects the garage area with the pits, provides one of the few places in major sports where fans can mingle with their heroes. In fact, drivers, owners and mechanics often have to push their way through the crowd, signing autographs and talking with excited people.

The museum of 500 and Speedway relics is free and open year-round. There is even the opportunity to ride around the track in a Speedway bus for 50 cents, except in May.

But it's the race cars, the speeds and personalities that draw most people here. Racing has changed tremendously since the first Indy 500 in 1911.

Ray Harroun won the first race in a Marmon Wasp at an average speed of 74.59 miles an hour.

Mark Donahue, last year's winner, averaged a record 162.962 m.p.h. in a winged McLaren-Offenhauser.

Fairly keeps Pirates-reeling

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ron Fairly has a good memory—but then again, nights like Monday aren't all that hard to remember.

Fairly got only one hit in five times at bat against the Pirates, but it was the big one—a solo homer in the 10th inning that lifted the Montreal Expos to a 3-2 victory and sent Pittsburgh to its sixth consecutive loss.

"I think it was a fast ball," said Fairly of his game-winning shot off Nelson Briles, "but I'm not sure. All I know is, I hit it well.

"It's easy to remember the good days," observed Fairly, who had fond memories of Briles and the Pirates even before his blast.

He hit another tie-breaking homer off Briles in a game won by the Expos earlier this season. And back in 1965, while playing for the Los Angeles Dodgers, Fairly again beat the Pirates with a last-inning homer.

In other National League baseball games, Philadelphia whipped St. Louis 10-5, Atlanta topped Houston 7-1 and San Diego beat San Francisco, also by a 7-1 count.

The New York Mets' game against the Cubs in Chicago was postponed due to cold weather, and Los Angeles and Cincinnati were not scheduled.

In the American League, Texas beat Minnesota 7-6 in the opener of a twi-night doubleheader but dropped the second game 6-4 in 11 innings, Detroit defeated the New York Yankees 8-0, Boston edged Baltimore 1-0 in 11 innings, California nipped Kansas City 3-2 in 10 innings, Cleveland slipped past Milwaukee 2-1 and Oakland beat the Chicago White Sox 5-1.

The defeat was the 14th in the last 19 games for the Pirates, last year's NL East champions. And Briles, who suffered his fourth defeat in five decisions, feels its the pitchers who must pull the club out of its rut.

"When you're not getting anything going, you're pitching has to pick you up. It's up to us."

Philadelphia scored six runs on six singles in the fourth inning to beat the Cardinals. Greg Luzinski had a single, double and triple and rookie Mike Schmidt drove in three runs.

"My swing hasn't been what I wanted it to be," said Luzinski, who came into the game batting .206. Last year he hit .281 with 18 homers.

Atlanta's Mike Lum had a three-run double and a solo homer in the Braves' victory.

"It seems like every time we come to Houston, I'm hitting good," said Lum, adding that the double was off a high, outside fast ball, the homer off a low, inside fast ball.

Rookie outfielder John Grubb's tie-breaking single sparked a five-run outburst in the seventh inning that boosted San Diego past the Giants. Jerry Morales and Clarence Gaston each drove in two runs for the Padres.

Mizzou changes defense

COLUMBIA, Mo. — The old order changeth. Missouri is forsaking its man- to- man pass defense of long usage for zone coverage. Clay Cooper chomps on his always- unlit cigar, and admits he's "excited" about the change-over.

"You just have more chance of success nowadays with the zone against the sophisticated offenses," says Clay who has studied football fashions and trends since 1947 when he joined Don Faurot's Mizzou staff.

He's logged all those 26 years at Missouri, has Clay – and this spring, coach Al Onofrio's top aide scrapped the old man- to- man playbooks, and taught the zone concept.

"It was becoming more-and- more difficult to find three guys with the ability to play man- to- man back there," says Cooper. What he's saying, in effect, is that the cycles just didn't produce enough Roger Wehrlis, John Rolands, and Butch Davises in recent years.

"Let's put it this way. You can take dedicated players without outstanding speed -- and get more mileage out of them in zone coverage. We'll still incorporate some man- to-man in our drills."

The "old dog" traditionally has a hangup about taking on new habits. What about Cooper?

"No -- I really can see three distinct advantages in the zone. First of all, you involve more people in your pass defense. Next, you present an alignment that is tougher to throw against consistently, and your chances for interception are greater.

"Finally -- and this was most surprising to me -- the zone provides much better support against the rushing game. You're watching the quarterback now -- and that receiver can't run you out of the park -- as was possible in man-to- man situations.

"And when you're primarily tracking the quarterback, you've got a better shot at the interception," Cooper summarizes.

Cooper won't rate his defensive backs at the moment because "we need to further evaluate our films this spring, and determine if some of them are better on the corners than deep."

Five lettermen are back – Co-capt. John Moseley, Steve Yount, Ken Gregory, Brad Brown and Gary Anderson. A sixth letterman, converted from quarterback, is Tony Gillick. Then there's Randy Grossart, a sophomore red-shirt, plus a pair of talented freshmen -- Chuck Banta and Jerry Williams.

Cooper indicates that "six or seven looked pretty good this spring."

Moseley, of course, is the solid guy -- a spunky bantam who led the club in interceptions. Gregory was felled in the Nebraska game by a back ailment, and that was his season. Brown and Anderson were late- season players. Yount was a sometimes starter.

Banta, who stole two passes in Saturday's football finale, is "gonna be a contender," Cooper predicts. The coach also likes Gillick's potential in a new role. Williams is another well-regarded newcomer.

Inconsistency is the trait most apt to put a player in Cooper's doghouse. "When you get beat back there, or miss a key tackle, it could be the ball game," he says.

Whoever plays Mizzou's center safety in the new set-up "should be our best athlete," Cooper says.

"He must have the perception to keep deep leverage in his area, and still be able to cover from seam-to- seam -- and yet be able to do a reasonable job up forward."

Today in U.S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Tuesday, May 15, the 135th day of 1973. There are 230 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1940, the Netherlands surrendered to Germany in World War II.

On this date—

In 1571, Moscow was burned by the Tartars.

In 1767, Genoa sold the island of Corsica to France.

In 1862, the U.S. Congress established the Department of Agriculture.

In 1918, the first regular air mail service was started — between New York, Philadelphia and Washington.

In 1924, the Congress passed a bill putting immigration into the United States on a quota basis.

UMC battle evolves over legislative cut

JEFFERSON CITY — The University of Missouri is right in the thick of the state appropriations fight now underway in the General Assembly.

University President C. Brice Ratchford, angered by a $4 million cut from the University's extension services budget, last week accused the legislature of trying to tell the University's administrators and board of curators how to run the school.

"If they did not have the money and left it to us to make the cuts where we thought best, that's one thing," Ratchford told a St. Louis news conference. "This is another."

Ratchford, a University vice president in charge of the Extension Division before his appointment as President in 1970, said approximately one-half of the 1,400 persons involved in extension services will have to be dismissed if the cut is retained in the final appropriations bill adopted by the legislature.

State Senator A. Clifford Jones (R-Brentwood) sponsored the Senate Appropriations Committee amendment that deleted the $4 million from a $15.9 million extension services budget. Jones, a graduate of Princeton University and self- confessed "Ivy League snob", charges that the University spends too much money on the far- flung operations of its extension division and that, despite the support of the legislature, it has never achieved "academic excellence".

As a land grant institution, the University is required to have programs of agricultural extension to assist farmers in developing better ways of producing crops and livestock. But only $4-5 million of the nearly $16 million extension budget goes for agriculture-related programs, according to Jones. The rest of the division's budget goes for such diverse programs as radio features, adult education, rural transportation services and others. The adult education programs came in for special criticism in the Senate Appropriations Committee where Senators called the program a costly duplicate of programs already being carried out by various junior colleges around the state.

According to Ratchford, the University's extension programs, which serve approximately one million persons, are regarded as an answer to two educational problems: Wider access to more students and limiting the need for building expansion.

The University requested $118 million from the state's general revenue fund for the year, and probably will suffer a $13 million or so cut from that figure. Still, an eight per cent increase over last year's $97 million is a considerable boost.

The House of Representatives already has adopted a $107 million budget for the University which includes the $15 million recommendation for extension services.

Rep. Steve Vossmeyer (D-St. Louis), a first term legislator who lost in his efforts to cut the University budget by $2 million on the House floor, blames "a great political fear" of the University on the part of his fellow representatives for his defeat.

"Don't get involved or you've had it," Vossmeyer said he was warned. He said other legislators told him stories of men who opposed the University and then found themselves getting defeated during the next election.

Ratchford denies the University has ever tried to defeat a legislative opponent. "We've not turned any dogs loose," he says. "Why should we? We won."

If the University draws political support from the thousands of alumni who are quick to defend their alma mater, there also is antagonism as a result of letters the legislators receive from angry constituents whose sons and daughters are refused admission to the University. Ratchford spends a great deal of his time in legislative committee hearings defending the school's admission policies.

The University also is under attack from many faculty members who are unhappy with the priorities the administration is following. A mild "brain drain" currently is in progress at the University as some qualified professors are leaving for greener pastures. There is some fear that recent resignations mark a decline in academic quality.

The future rests in the hands of the University administration and the General Assembly. The outcome of the current squabble over the budget may be indicative of the course the University will finally take.

EYE-CATCHER—A great way to make waves this summer: pick the brightest, softest beach towel you can find. Cone comes up with a thirsty all-cotton one that's splashed with mod flowers in red, gold, and navy.
